U.S. Peace Corpsman Shot, Killed, Comrade Wounded In Venezuela

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—A U.S. Peace Corps member was shot to death and a comrade seriously wounded by police who mistook them for Communist terrorists Friday night.

Shot through the heart when he stepped from his Jeep with his hands up was Joseph R. Rupley, 24, Orinda, Calif., the driver who was with the Peace Corps staff in Venezuela.

Peace Corps volunteer David Glover, 25, Grasse Ile, Mich., also stepped from the auto with his hands raised and was shot in the stomach. He underwent surgery in a Caracas hospital and his condition was reported satisfactory.

Two other Peace Corps volunteers in the back seat of the vehicle established their identities and police took the victims to a hospital. The other two were Ronald Bean, Fairfield, Maine, and Donald Carluccio, Hoboken, N.J.

Venezuelan authorities began an investigation. The U.S. Embassy gave this account of the incident:

Carluccio returned from the funeral of his father in Hoboken and the others went to the airport and picked him up.

Police had been fighting with students who were rioting in connection with a taxi strike that the government says is Communist inspired. One student was killed and 12 were injured.

The vehicle carrying the Peace Corps men passed the post of the judicial technical police at 11 p.m. on the return from the airport.

Police in a patrol car, who said they assumed the Jeep was carrying terrorists, pursued and shot out the rear tires. Then Rupley and Glover were shot as they stepped out of the vehicle.

Police said the same station had been attacked earlier in the evening by terrorists firing machine guns from an automobile.

Bean and Carluccio said they had observed about 30 plain clothesmen around the station and drove on by thinking they might be demonstrators.

"It was senseless," said Rupley's father, Joseph W. Rupley, in Orinda. "When they got out of the Jeep they had their hands up."

Rupley joined the Peace Corps in 1962 after graduation from the University of California at Berkeley. He served two years in Peru before going to Venezuela last September. As assistant director in charge of establishing farm cooperatives, he had been working recently near Merida in western Venezuela.

In Grasse Ile, Frederick S. Glover said his son David joined the Peace Corps last June following graduation from Michigan State University "because he was single and unattached and felt he wanted to do something. He has been very enthusiastic about his work."

The elder Glover said Rupley was David's immediate superior and that David "was very fond of him."

Anti-U.S. Outbursts Mount

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The American bombing raids on North Viet Nam in retaliation for Communist Viet Cong ground attacks on U.S. installations in South Viet Nam have brought widespread public demonstrations to the detriment of U.S. prestige abroad.

The past week was one of the worst on record for the type of incidents that have become a popular international means of pulling Uncle Sam's beard.

As often before, the latest incidents resulted in damage to U.S. embassies and other buildings and in abuse of American symbols such as the flag.

Presid. Johnson said: "We cannot be indifferent to acts designed to injure our interests, or our citizens, or our establishments abroad. The community of nations requires mutual respect. We shall extend it — and we shall expect it."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk declared: "We shall be very sensitive on these matters" and the United States is going to "press very sharply" for full protection of its embassies.

But as in the past, the question of what the United States would do — or could do — to effectively curb such outbursts was left unanswered.

Nor were the protests against U.S. policy in Viet Nam the only incidents last week involving American diplomacy.

Syria sent Walter S. Snowdon, U.S. second secretary, out of the country, accusing him of spying.

Tanzania recalled its ambassador to Washington in retaliation for the U.S. expulsion of a Tanzanian diplomat.

The Soviet Union on Friday ordered expulsion of the Moscow correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, Adam Clymer. He was accused of slapping a Russian policeman during an anti-American riot at the U.S. Embassy Feb. 9. Clymer denied it.

U.S. Ambassador Roy D. Kohler told newsmen, "We protested the action (against Clymer) and considered it unjustified."

In Warsaw on Wednesday, some 200 African and Asian students sought to emulate the Moscow attack but were beaten off by Polish riot police after smashing a few windows and splashing ink on the U.S. Embassy.

The most consistent demonstrations last week erupted in Indonesia — at Jakarta, Surabaya and Medan. Uncle Sam was burned in effigy in Jakarta by the 10,000-member Communist-led Youth Front.

In Medan, a mob of 700 over-ran the U.S. consulate and broke into the U.S. library. They ripped down the Stars and Stripes and tore down a U.S. shield.

Vietnamese Seize Cong Supply Cache

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—South Vietnamese forces have uncovered a make-shift Communist guerrilla supply depot — holding perhaps 30 tons of arms and supplies — in a cove and on a beach 200 miles northeast of Saigon, military authorities reported Saturday. They said it may be the biggest weapons haul of the war.

The officials said there was no doubt the material was shipped by sea from Communist North Viet Nam to supply Viet Cong forces fighting in the South. The cache included Red Chinese and Soviet-made weapons.

The announcement of the haul in Saigon coincided with a broadcast from Communist North Viet Nam expressing concern that the United States might launch air strikes against the North without provocation. This concern was voiced in the official Hanoi paper Nam Dan.

The supply depot was discovered during a routine flight by a U.S. helicopter over Vung Ro Bay last Tuesday. The helicopter drew heavy fire from a 120-foot steel-hulled Communist gunboat under a camouflage cover in the bay's shallow waters.

Vietnamese fighter-bombers were summoned and they sank the vessel.

Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh then personally launched a ground operation against the cove area (Continued On Page 13)

Khanh Relieved Of Power

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Military leaders who rescued Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh from South Viet Nam's latest coup turned on him Saturday with a vote of no confidence and decided to strip him of power, informed sources reported.

Dr. Kuiper, of the University of Arizona, said he saw evidence that much of the moon's surface is covered with lava-like material.

"We can expect that if this material is lava it will be shot through with caverns and tunnels like those I have found in lava areas on Hawaii," he added.

"This could be very tricky and treacherous stuff. A man could take a step forward and the tunnel would give way, and he would fall into a big hole or cavern."

"Many parts of the moon might be hard enough to support considerable weight, but an explorer could not assume that he would be safe everywhere."

"It may be that the first astronauts would be wise to carry long poles to probe the surface ahead of them to be sure it would hold their weight."

Ewen A. Whitaker, Kuiper's associate at the University of Arizona, said he thought the (Continued On Page 13)

Scientists Marvel But Disagree On Density, Solidity Of Surface

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Ranger 8 sent to earth Saturday a dramatic series of thousands of pictures of the moon's surface. Scientists marveled, but disagreed in interpreting them.

Dr. Gerard P. Kuiper, head of a team that will spend months analyzing the pictorial bonanza, said to him the lunar surface looks treacherous. While its strength can't be determined from photos, he said, "I think there is only about three to six feet of loose material covering the surface."

The first lunar explorers, he said, may have to probe the surface ahead with long poles to keep from falling into lava tunnels.

Another expert thought the surface would support a space ship.

A third thought there might be 50 to 60 feet of dust covering the broad plain where Ranger 8 crashed at 1:57 a.m. after a 65-hour journey from Cape Kennedy, Fla.

The insect-shaped spacecraft's six cameras returned at least 7,000 closeups during a 23-minute sweep across the face of the moon. It hit just 15 miles from its target in the Sea of Tranquility.

The point is 1,000 miles east of the point in the Mare Cognitum, or Sea That Has Become Known, where Ranger 7 crashed last July after returning a historic set of first lunar closeups.

A group of experts, taking turns addressing a news conference at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, which makes and guides the Rangers, said the quality of Saturday's pictures is at least as good as those of Ranger 7. And they hailed a bonus: because Ranger 8's cameras went on 10 minutes earlier than No. 7's, its pictures show an area of rugged highlands bordering the Sea of Tranquility. Ranger 7's shots showed only the sea it crashed in.

Dr. Kuiper, of the University of Arizona, said he saw evidence that much of the moon's surface is covered with lava-like material.

"We can expect that if this material is lava it will be shot through with caverns and tunnels like those I have found in lava areas on Hawaii," he added.

"This could be very tricky and treacherous stuff. A man could take a step forward and the tunnel would give way, and he would fall into a big hole or cavern."

Pathet Lao Claims Four U.S. Jets Shot Down Over Laos

TOKYO (AP)—Four U.S. F101 jets on bombing missions over Communist Pathet Lao areas of Laos were shot down Friday, Radio Peking claimed Saturday, quoting the Pathet Lao.

Several other planes were damaged, the broadcast added. All the planes were said to have been shot down over Sam Neua Province, a Pathet Lao stronghold in northeastern Laos.

The Defense Department in Washington confirmed that a U.S. Air Force pilot is missing on a flight from a base in South Viet Nam but said it had no information on the Communist claim that four F101s had been shot down.

A defense spokesman said Maj. Robert F. Ronca, 41, Norristown, Pa., was missing after taking off Friday from an unnamed field in South Viet Nam. Ronca was one of the leaders of an air strike against North Viet Nam last week.

Without hinting on the fate of the downed fliers, Radio Peking said 12 F101 jets and five T28 planes — the latter of a type flown by royal Laotian pilots — flew over Sam Neua Province between 1 and 8 p.m.

The broadcast said the planes were hit by Pathet Lao troops. It is known that there are radar-directed 37mm antiaircraft guns in Laos, probably manned by North Vietnamese troops.

Last Jan. 13, a P100 Super Sabre and an F105 Thunderchief were shot down in central Laos by ground fire while striking on Route 7. This is a key segment of a road and trail network that feeds both the Pathet Lao and the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam.

The United States has been regularly bombing Communist supply lines running from Communist North Viet Nam through Laos and down into South Viet Nam.

The United States has declared the action to be in defense of the royal Laotian government and justified because the Communists have repeatedly violated the Geneva agreement of 1962 guaranteeing the neutrality of Laos.

Strong Winds Blow Arctic Cold Into Midwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buffeting northerly winds with gusts up to 80 miles an hour blew a fast-spreading cold wave into northern sections of the midcontinent Saturday.

Temperatures were expected to drop sharply by Sunday night as far south as Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

The arctic invasion transformed springlike weather into midwinter misery in some sections.

Winds up to 80 miles an hour pushed five empty railroad cars 90 miles from Portal, N.D., southeastward to Minot on Friday. The stock cars were blown off a Portal siding of the Soo Line, through a switch and onto the main line where they rolled along until stopping at Minot.

Icy winds up to 60 m.p.h. picked up large quantities of snow in the Dakotas creating blizzard conditions.

The mercury climbed above freezing in Fargo, N.D., for the first time since Thanksgiving, but the cold wave hit in the morning with the temperature at 40 degrees and by noon the city had a reading of 23 and a 40-mile wind.

The cold wave pushed into the Dakotas and Minnesota and cold wave warnings were issued for Saturday night for Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, and parts of Missouri.

The cold wave was expected to spread across Missouri and Kansas on Sunday.

Temperatures ranged from 5 at Minot, N.D., to 84 at Palm Springs, Calif.

A 2-inch snow whitened Billings, Mont., and warnings to stockmen were issued.

Near-record warmth prevailed south of the cold front. Temperatures were near the 70-degree mark in Missouri.

The mercury was expected to plummet to -25 degrees in northern North Dakota and Minnesota.

Subzero cold also invaded parts of the Northeast. Bradford in western Pennsylvania had a reading of -10 Saturday.

Skies were sunny over most of the country.

DIRECT AIR LINK BETWEEN MOSCOW, CONGO BRAZZAVILLE, Congo Republic (AP) — A direct air link between Brazzaville and Moscow was inaugurated Saturday.

Number Patterns Catch On

GIRLS PUT EIGHT TO WORK — Jackie Perry (r) and Becky Gresham show Don Robinson, math teacher at Jefferson elementary school their number pattern using eight. Jackie is a student at Lincoln school, while Becky attends Jefferson.

Girls Show They Can Find Them

Number systems are presently sweeping grade schools in District No. 117. Teachers report that number patterns have become a popular sport, and many of the students have found new approaches.

The pattern most like the one that John Flowers found was discovered by two sixth grade girls.

Becky Gresham, in Mr. O'Brien's room at Jefferson school showed it to Don Robinson, Jackie Perry, sixth grader at Lincoln, showed her pattern to her teacher, Mrs. Auden-kamp.

Second Row	First Row
1 x 8 = 08	15 x 8 = 120
2 x 8 = 16	16 x 8 = 128
3 x 8 = 24	17 x 8 = 136
4 x 8 = 32	18 x 8 = 144
5 x 8 = 40	19 x 8 = 152
6 x 8 = 48	20 x 8 = 160
7 x 8 = 56	21 x 8 = 168
8 x 8 = 64	22 x 8 = 176
9 x 8 = 72	23 x 8 = 184
10 x 8 = 80	24 x 8 = 192
11 x 8 = 88	25 x 8 = 200
12 x 8 = 96	26 x 8 = 208
13 x 8 = 104	27 x 8 = 216
14 x 8 = 112	28 x 8 = 224

Neither child, nor teacher, knew that the pattern was being noticed by the other until the two teachers met and began to tell one another about their "discovery."

Becky and Jackie made two rows of numerals.

The first row is made by counting 8, 6, 4, 2, 0, and then repeating to infinity. Each numeral is placed just under the other as in the diagram below.

To the left of this row they make another row of numerals by counting 0, 1, 2 etc. until a zero in the first row is reached.

They repeat the numeral beside the zero and resume counting as if there had been no interruption. When they have finished, they have the product for the multiplication table of eight.

Jackie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Perry of 1335 Mound, and Becky is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Gresham of 523 Sherman.

Pre-Civil War Days Here Topic Before Kiwanis

"Illinois holds a unique place in American pre-Civil War history, and Jacksonville has a special history in that both Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas at some time during their lives were closely associated with the city."

Dr. E. H. Berwanger

"During the nineteenth century Illinois was the only state which offered two presidential candidates in the same election," Dr. Eugene H. Berwanger, assistant professor of history and government at Illinois College, told members of the Jacksonville Kiwanis Club Thursday noon.

According to Dr. Berwanger, Douglas' associations with the city stemmed from friendships established early in his political career. Arriving in Jacksonville from New England in November of 1833, at the age of 20, he hoped from the beginning to establish himself as a lawyer and to enter politics. After an abortive move to Pekin and one term teaching school at Winchester, he returned to become state's attorney for the first judicial district, a member of the legislature from Morgan County, and an unsuccessful candidate for Congress in 1838. He then took a land office position in Springfield.

Lincoln, on the other hand, was associated with Jacksonville for a longer period of time. But, his relationship was as an outsider who influenced Whigs and Republicans in the city; he never lived here.

Lincoln as a member of the state legislature was instrumental in securing a state road through Jacksonville. He mentioned after breaking his engagement with Mary Todd (he married her a year later) that he had heard she visited mutual friends in Jacksonville, and he said he hoped the visit would improve her spirits.

By the early 1850's, following his one term in Congress, Lincoln was sought out by Jacksonville residents as a legal counselor. In one case he defended the trustees of Illinois College; in another he defended James Dunlap in a case against Paul Selby, editor of the Morgan Journal.

Following the passage of the Kansas-Nebraska Act of 1854, Lincoln became influential in the movement to prevent the spread of slavery. Some of the correspondence with Julian Sturtevant and other members of the anti-slavery element at Illinois College is currently in the archives of the college.

Lincoln spoke at numerous political rallies in Jacksonville, and gave one of his rare "non-political" speeches in the city. Entitled "Lecture on Discoveries and Inventions," the speech was sponsored by Phi Alpha Society at Illinois College.

When the 1860 election results were finally tabulated, Douglas carried Morgan County by 55% of the vote. But the citizens of Morgan were faced with a difficult task—for in their own way, both Lincoln and Douglas were "favorite sons."

day after being a surgical patient at Passavant hospital.

Byron 'Humpy' Campbell, Former City Fireman Dies

Byron R. "Humpy" Campbell, 58, of 613 North Webster, former assistant chief of the Jacksonville fire department and member of the department for 23 years, died suddenly at 4 p.m. Friday at Memorial hospital in Springfield.

He had been a patient there for the past two days.

He was born in the Litterberry community, February 7, 1907, a son of David and Mary Elizabeth Stevenson Campbell. He was married to Myrtle Louise Shaven on Sept. 20, 1925 in Winchester, who survives.

Campbell, both of Jacksonville; three sisters, Mrs. Ila Bacon of Jacksonville; Mrs. Mary Catherine Coverly of New York, New York and Mrs. Irene Stringham of California and eight grandchildren. He was preceded in death by two daughters, Mary Louise Campbell and Shirley Mae Campbell and a brother.

He was a member of the Litterberry Baptist church, a veteran of World War II, and for four and one half years after his retirement, September 16, 1959, he served as a cottage parent at the Illinois School for the Deaf.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Monday from the Gillham-Buchanan Funeral Home with Rev. William J. Boston officiating. Burial will be in Jacksonville East cemetery.

SALEM METHODIST WSCS MEETS AT SAYRE RESIDENCE

The February meeting of the Salem Methodist WSCS was held at the home of Mrs. Roy Sayre. Luncheon was prepared by Mrs. Sayre and Mrs. James Robinson.

Mrs. Everett Armstrong opened the meeting and Mrs. Bertha Davies presented the lesson "Hearing God Speak Through The Bible." Mrs. Albert Koss and Mrs. Richard Johnson contributed to the birthday box.

A Valentine exchange was held during roll call. Mrs. Davies presented the spiritual life thought and the meeting closed with the singing of a hymn.

Among the guests present were James Robinson, Dale Hamilton, Roy Newbery, Harvey Davies, Roy Sayre, Mrs. Charles Anderson, Mrs. Nettie White and Gayle Matson.

The next meeting will be held at the church March 4.

A meat loaf made with ground beef and bulk pork sausage usually tastes delicious when it is chilled and sliced thin. This way the loaf will make a fine addition to a luncheon salad plate. Crusty hot French rolls and sweet butter make a pleasant accompaniment.

Designate Polls, Judges For Unit 27 Election

ARENZVILLE — The Board of Education of Community Unit School District 27 met in regular session at the School Board office, Concord, at 1:30 p.m. Feb. 17 following luncheon at the Chapin School lunch-room.

In addition to conducting routine business, the board designated voting precincts, polling places, and judges for the regular election for school board members to be held on Saturday, April 10, between the hours of noon and 7 p.m. and instructed the superintendent to have proper legal notices published of such election.

Polling places and judges are: Precinct No. 1, Arenzville Lower Grade Building, Arenzville. Judges, J. A. Shannon, Joanne Peck, Edward Hackman. Precinct No. 2, Concord Grade School, Concord. Judges, Ted Kershaw, Paul Ginder, Walter Williams. Precinct No. 3, Chapin Grade School, Chapin. Judges, Verne Smith, Amel McDaniel, Lloyd Anderson.

Consider Safety Code
Mr. Schnake read a communication from N. E. Hutson, legal advisor of the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, in regard to questions which have been raised concerning the legality of the new Illinois School Safety Code. No further action was taken by the board on this matter.

A letter from Ray Page, Superintendent of Public Instruction, and a copy of Senate Bill 56 were read by Mr. Schnake. The bill provides that school boards may provide transportation by school bus for pupils to and from school-sponsored activities, provided that a reasonable charge is made to help defray the cost of using the buses. The board then authorized the use of Unit 27 school buses for such activities and authorized a reasonable charge to be made for student spectators riding the buses.

Mr. Schnake read a communication stating that a deficiency appropriation will be made by the State of Illinois in order that state aid claims may be paid in full to all schools for the 1964-65 school year.

Report On Meeting
Mr. Schnake and Mrs. Bischoff reported briefly on an orientation meeting which they had attended recently in Springfield in regard to the new Illinois School Financial Accounting System Manual which will go into effect July 1.

The board voted to offer contracts for the 1965-66 school year to the present administrators, superintendent Leland Schnake and principals James Brim, Robert Brand, and Robert McAllister.

The education committee will meet March 2 at 2 p.m. at the school board office to consider revisions in the salary schedule for the 1965-66 school year. On the education committee are board members Robert Clark, Robert Kircher, and Don Meyer.

Civil Rights Compliance
The board authorized the signing of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, assuring compliance with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare regulations under this act.

Finally the board discussed at length various school problems and possible plans for future improvement and development in Unit No. 27.

British Health Service Threatened By Doctors' Revolt For More Pay

LONDON (AP) — A revolt by Britain's 23,000 family doctors for more pay poses the biggest threat to the socialized National Health Service since it was set up in 1948.

If the doctors pull out of the new plan for keeping wages and service, as they have threatened to do, the whole scheme of state-run medical facilities in this country could collapse.

The physicians are angry at what they call a grossly inadequate pay award which will bring their pay up to an average of $16 a week. They have asked for a minimum of $16.

Health Minister Kenneth Robinson has pointed out that the award was made by an independent review body, a sort of arbitration court set up under the previous Conservative government.

He said: "I have never known such a spontaneous surge of resentment and anger like that shown by family doctors."

The increase goes into a central pool from which the family doctors are paid. Doctors who employ receptionists, nurses or secretaries will get more than those who don't. The doctors want the pools system done away with. They want the increase evenly divided among all doctors. And they want more money.

An estimated 400 doctors a year are leaving Britain for overseas posts, but most of them apparently do not oppose the philosophy of free medicine. Each doctor gets a basic payment from the government of $2,37 per patient. After the first 1,000 patients he gets an additional $2.10 a patient.

Other small increases are allowed on further patients up to a maximum of 3,500, the limit a doctor can have under the

Bly Corning Has Treasure Trove In 17 Tons Of Old Sheet Music

FLINT, Mich. (AP)—Bly Corning has a treasure trove he thinks will provide him with an exciting hobby for years to come — 17 tons of old sheet music.

Corning bought the collection — he won't say where — three years ago. He is still in the process of sorting and cataloging it.

For most of the three years he was secretive about the collec-est," he insisted. "I have some friends with large and very wonderful collections."

His collection dates back to 1759, at least. "We've only seen about 20 per cent of it," Corning said. The latest sheets were published in the 1920s.

Corning won't say where he has the collection stored and won't say how much he paid for it. "I'd just rather not."

But he becomes very articulate when talking about the collection.

"There are just so many areas of interest," he said. "I'm making a collection of fun titles and songs surrounding the presidents of the United States. There are songs about the nominations, the elections — all the way through to the death marches."

"I'm sorting out a collection of Stephen Foster originals. And there are many elaborate lithograph covers, which in themselves are valuable as works of graphic art."

Corning hired Dr. Joseph as research director and with his help is picking out the material to go to the University of Michigan. That's a massive job alone. Of the 700,000 pieces of sheet music, Corning and Joseph are picking out a collection of music composed and published in Europe between 1764 and 1924, most of it in editions.

This material contains more than half of the works of George Frederick Handel — including a complete score as used in the first performance of "The Messiah" in Dublin in 1742. This will go to the school of music.

A former high school football player, the husky Corning, says: "When you take an old pile of music and dig in it, you don't know what you'll find: beautiful covers, funny songs, just anything."

Corning, born near Traverse City, Mich., moved here at the age of 6. Shortly before his World War II Army service he attended Michigan Normal School, now Eastern Michigan University.

"I intended to become a teacher," he said, "but never worked at it."

He founded Corning Manufacturing Co. in 1949, and he and his wife, Audrey, and daughter, Jennifer, 14, live in an upper-middle-class residential area. Asked if he had an extensive musical background himself, he

He enrolled at Eureka College in 1959 and became minister of the Stanford congregation. He graduated from Eureka in 1963, then enrolled at Brite Divinity School in Fort Worth, Texas, and became minister of the First Christian church at Eastland, Texas; deciding just recently to return to Illinois. The Cameron's oldest daughter is Christine, 18, who is a freshman at Eureka. Jody 15, Mark 12, and Ray Jr., 6 are at home.

100 ATTEND CUB PACK 101 ANNUAL BANQUET

A Blue and Gold Banquet was served members of Cub Scout Pack 101, Boy Scouts of America, by officers, committeemen and den mothers in the cafeteria of Washington school, on Feb. 18. Approximately 30 cubs and 70 parents and guests attended. Attractive centerpieces and table decorations, made by members of each individual den, carried out the theme of blue and gold.

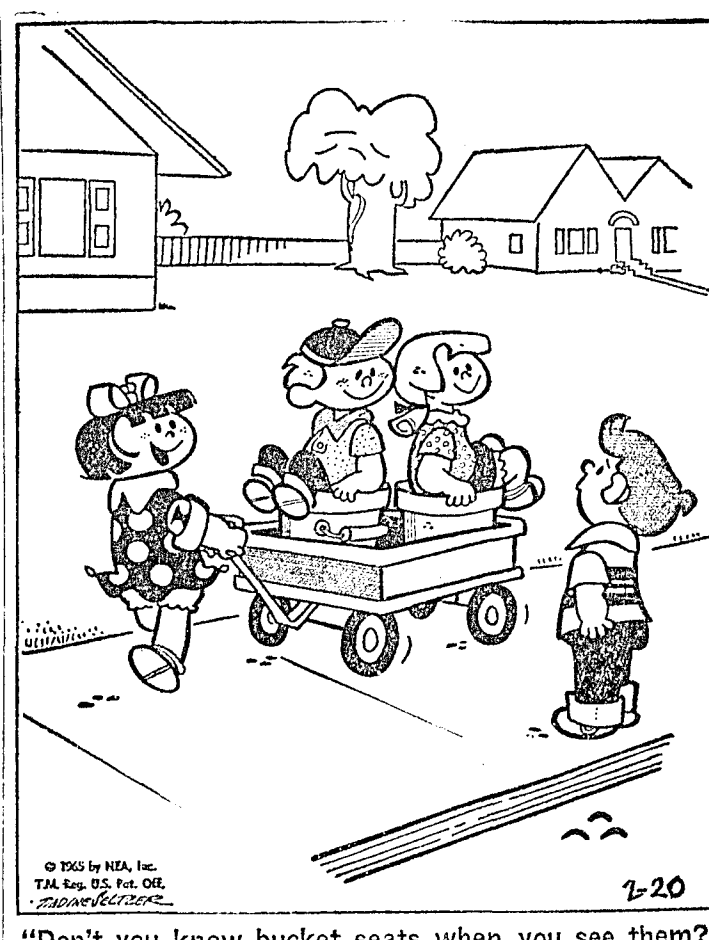

The regular pack meeting followed. The story of The Blue and Gold was told by assistant cub master, Ken Wilkinson, assisted by cub scouts, Mark Gillespie and Kim Marshall, in a campfire setting with all other cub scouts seated around the fire.

Group songs were lead by den mother, Mrs. Jo Marshall.

Advancements were made and awards were presented by advancement committeeman, Allan Pruitt. Advancements were: Mark Gillespie, from Webelos to Boy Scouts; Steve Crawford, Frank Walker, John Atkins, Steve Foster, and Eddie Flynn, Wolf; Jerry Stallings, Lion to Webelos; Allan Mitchell, Webelos. Cub master, John Marshall closed the meeting with song.

Plain but good for lunch or a dinner appetizer: halves of hard-cooked eggs topped with Russian dressing. Add a sprig or two of parsley or watercress for pretty color contrast.

ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY YEARS OLD?—The worn and weathered house at 718 West Morton avenue, which will be razed soon, contains evidence that could place the age of the building well over 120 years.

White oak hand-hewn beams, studs and laths were recently uncovered when wrecking crews began to dismantle the house, formerly occupied by Mrs. Naomi Sayles, who lived at that address for the last 30 years.

Last-known local residence that contained such pieces of construction was that of Dr. H. L. Griswold on West State street, which was torn down two years ago to make way for a parking lot.

TIME WORN BROAD AX MARKS — Chip marks, possibly made from the blade of a broad ax are easily seen on this stud, just under the clapboard of the house. Hand-hewn laths are seen to the left of the stud, which is still partially covered with bark.

Jess McCarthy, 74, of 818 West Morton, said that the "Sayles house" had been there as long as he could remember. "I've lived here in this house almost all my life, and that house has always been there," he noted.

The house, along with several others, is being torn down to make way for a drive-in restaurant.

Braille Specialists From Jacksonville In Washington, D.C.

L. W. Rodenberg returned to Jacksonville last week after he attended a conference held in the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C.

Dr. Rodenberg formerly served as supervisor of Braille printing at the state school in Jacksonville.

On retiring in November, 1963, he was requested by the American Braille Authority to continue as a member of its subcommittee on music.

The advisory group meeting in Washington included, besides Dr. Rodenberg, appointees from San Francisco, Louisville, Indianapolis, Lansing, Washington, New York and Boston.

Two newcomer braille specialists at the Library of Congress, Miss Ruth Keyes and Miss Janice Avery, recently from Jacksonville, are taking a prominent part in the work of the Braille Department of the Library.

Miss Keyes (sighted), originally of Mount Sterling, Ill., served as teacher - librarian at IBSSS from September 1962 to September 1964 when she was called to Washington to take charge of the expanding Division of Recordings for the Blind (disk and tape) at the Library of Congress.

These recordings are made by several thousand volunteer transcribers and readers in their homes or clubs throughout the United States. This work has been organized for several years and is now one of the most important factors in the education of the blind.

Miss Avery (without sight), originally from Rockford, graduated from IBSSS High School in 1956, studied music at Illinois Wesleyan University for three years and received her M.A. degree from S.I.U. in 1960.

She studied modern languages for two years at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. Last summer she was appointed to the staff of the Department for the Blind, Library of Congress, with the challenging assignment of developing volunteer braille music transcribing in all areas of the U.S., a program which has been contemplated but not attempted for some time.

One of her first undertakings is the editing of a manual in letterpress for the instruction of seeing volunteers to transcribe ordinary staff scores onto braille sheets.

Like Miss Keyes in the literary field, Miss Avery will direct a large corps of proof-readers whose work is aimed at securing accuracy in the embossed manuscripts. These manuscripts come to the Library in Washington, are reproduced onto plastic sheets through the thermoform process, and are cataloged for distribution on loan.

In developing her new manual, Miss Avery became confronted by a number of technical problems in the braille system of music, and the advisory conference was arranged by Robert Bray, Director of the Department for the Blind of the Library of Congress.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market took a slight loss on average last week as the pace of trading simmered down from the previous week when the list fell sharply.

Wall Street seemed to be getting used to the idea of a continuous crisis in Viet Nam. News of the latest political-military upheaval in Saigon barely rippled the surface of Wall Street on Friday when stock prices scored a small gain.

The market's loss on the week was merely a loss in the Dow Jones industrial average. The Associated Press average, based on the number of stocks rising as against those falling, the market was actually higher. Enough influential blue-chips represented in the more closely-watched averages fell, however, so that these indicators were down a bit.

The Dow industrials fell 2.36 to 885.61.

The AP 60-stock average was down 3 at 332.4.

A number of blue chips which have been prominent in the big rally this year to boost the Dow industrials above the "magic" 1,000 level were resting on their oars.

The week's total volume was 27,908,210 shares compared with 29,694,710 the previous week. The airlines, very strong recently, stumbled on profit taking. Railroads, however, came up strong late in the week because of the new Treasury rules easing depreciation to an estimated extent of $400 to $600 million in tax returns for business this year.

George Day Special
Monday only. 14x18 discontinued carpet samples. 20¢ each. Limit 5 to a customer.

MAIN FURNITURE

Bonds ended the week mostly unchanged. U.S. government issues inched up until Thursday, then fell back after the Federal Reserve said its member banks free supplies of cash had diminished further.

Corporate bonds were mostly unchanged in dull trading. On the New York Stock Exchange, corporate bond volume for the week totaled $56,358,000 par value, down from $59,990,000 for the week before.

Of 508 issues traded, 196 advanced, 201 declined and 100 were unchanged. Forty-three hit highs for the year. Seven dropped to lows for the year.

GRAINS FINISH WITH NO RADICAL PRICE CHANGES

CHICAGO (AP)—The grain futures market, pressed from both sides by strong influences, finished last week without radical price shifts.

A major depressing feature was the persisting strike of International Longshoremen's Association dock workers at South-east ports. The stoppage tied up all East and Gulf ports for about one month, but there were only two at week's end where no settlement was in sight — Galveston and Miami.

Partial resumption of work perked up soybean futures prices in the face of a pressing foreign demand for American soybeans. The strike killed millions of bushels of potential sales for wheat.

Rye and oats were caught in the strike squeeze, with little hopes of developing any overseas business to help with prices.

Soybeans closed 1 1/4 to 3 1/2 cents a bushel higher for the week, March $3.02 1/4-3/4; wheat $1.48 1/2-1.49; corn 3/4 lower, March $1.27 1/2; oats 1/2-1/4 lower, March 67 1/2-70; rye unchanged to 3/4 lower, March $1.20 1/2.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP)—The livestock market in Chicago, on adequate receipts, somewhat up from the week earlier for hogs, cattle and sheep, eased the price line slightly, except for lambs.

The week's hog supply was 29,000 compared with 26,200 a week and 28,000 a year ago. Barrows and gilts closed 25 to 75 cents a hundredweight lower, but sows held steady to 25 lower.

Prices of hogs were forced lower by supplies, the month's largest locally, and in 12 principal markets, and a lower pork trade. Carlot pork loins and fresh hams at Chicago were steady to $1.00 lower, and Boston butts were $.50 lower.

Cattle received were 31,700 compared with 24,800 last week and 31,900 a year ago, and the 12-market total was up, 193,700 compared with last week's 170,600 and 187,000 a year ago. The high choice and prime slaughter steers were mostly 25 cents lower, with average choice and below 50-75 lower. Heifers were steady to 25 lower. The dressed trade prices were mostly lower.

The local supply of sheep largely slaughter lambs, was 1,700, mostly shorn, and these closed around 50 higher, with carcass lamb $1.00 to $2.00 higher.

and South Vietnamese troops fought their way in Friday.

From the weapons dump, the South Vietnamese recovered 900 Red Chinese rifles, 50 Soviet-made submachine guns, 14 automatic rifles and a Russian machine gun, plus an undetermined amount of explosives.

In the hull of the sunken gunboat, divers brought up a 50-caliber anti-aircraft gun, a 57mm recoilless rifle, a box of grenades, a base plate for an 81mm mortar, 50-caliber ammunition and North Vietnamese documents.

Military sources said it was possible the gunboat had been running supply missions from the North along the Southern coast during the night and hiding during the day.

The North Vietnamese broadcast, quoting from Nhan Dan, said any further U.S. attacks on the North will be "an extremely grave matter."

"The U.S. imperialists must bear full responsibility for the consequences arising from their acts," it said.

Denying that the Hanoi regime is responsible for Viet Cong attacks on U.S. installations in the South, the newspaper said that South Vietnamese are solely responsible for Viet Cong activities.

"They, the paper added, have a right to beat the United States 'black and blue' for remaining in South Viet Nam for the past 10 years.

surface could support a manned landing vehicle. The surface, he said, probably was a foamy outflow from fissures and craters and that over thousands of years this had been broken into tiny bits by the impact of meteorites.

If the dust that seems to cover the moon originated in this manner, he said, it probably would compact under the weight of a landing ship — at least enough to make landings feasible.

The United States hopes to land astronauts on the moon in five years.

Dr. Harold Urey of the University of California at La Jolla, another member of the board of experts, commented: "Several craters seem to show a whitish button at the bottom. This indicates there may be very hard material underneath."

Dr. Urey estimated the depth of some craters at 50 to 60 feet, saying this might indicate the maximum depth of soft dust-like material he believes covers the surface.

Dr. Eugene Shoemaker, another team member, said he does not believe the strength of the surface can be told from pictures.

Ranger 7's pictures showed a generally flat landscape, with many craters of various sizes ranging down to 18 inches across. The rounded nature of topographical features is what led many scientists to believe the surface was covered with dust.

Ranger 7's pictures showed a strikingly the same, when they were made from comparable distances. New and different, however, were the shots over the highlands surrounding the seas.

Dr. Kuiper marveled over shots showing craters and mountains on the shoreline and almost glowed at "rills."

Rills are trenches in the moon's surface believed caused by settling between faults, or cracks.

Seven New Baseball Managers Open Training Camps This Week

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

The heat will be hottest for Johnny Keane and Red Schoendienst when the seven new managers report for work this week at baseball's spring training camps.

Keane will be hard-pressed to top last year's dramatics when he brought the St. Louis Cardinals from behind and won both the National League pennant and the World Series. Having shifted to the New York Yankees, his Series victims, Keane finds himself managing a club that is a 6-5 favorite to win its sixth straight American League championship.

Schoendienst, starting a new career as a manager after years of playing and coaching, steps into a tough spot at St. Louis, where Keane told owner Gusie Busch to go fly a kite after winning everything in 1964. The Cardinals have been established as 4-1 co-favorites with Philadelphia, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Others Have Problems

Perhaps the pressure of trying to repeat with proven pennant winners is not as difficult as the tasks before Billy Herman at Boston and Lum Harris at Houston. Both must rescue clubs embedded deep in the second division.

Herman, getting a second chance as a manager after an 18-year wait, will try to spark a revival at Fenway Park. Harris, who had a taste of the job ahead in the final weeks of the 1964 season after he succeeded Harry Craft, must do better if Houston is to pack them in at the new domed stadium.

Herman Franks also will be under considerable pressure at San Francisco in his first year as a manager. Alvin Dark did win in 1962 but walked the plank after two misses. It will be up to Franks, a coach under Dark, to handle the many problems that handicapped the Giants last season.

Must Help Attendance

Harry Walker, taking over at Danny Murthaugh at Pittsburgh, must come up with something close to the winner of 1960 to excite the fans at Forbes Field, where attendance is off.

Dick Sisler, succeeding the late Fred Hutchinson at Cincinnati, now has the responsibility of handling the Reds on a full-time basis after filling in as a stand-in manager during a large part of the 1964 season.

Most of the clubs report in sections, the pitchers and catchers first with the main squad a few days later. Houston and Detroit have had advance rookie squads, including a smattering of veterans, in early camps for a week.

Washington and Houston have the battermen report Sunday, the Senators at Pompano Beach, Fla., and the Astros at Cocoa, Fla. Minnesota's first group will be at Orlando, Fla., Monday.

The Tuesday arrivals are the Chicago White Sox at Sarasota, Fla., Kansas City at Bradenton, Fla., and the Los Angeles Angels at Palm Springs, Calif.

Yanks Open Wednesday

Keane will get his first look at the Yanks when the battermen report Wednesday at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. On the same day Baltimore will be at Miami, Detroit at Lakeland, Fla., Pittsburgh at Fort Myers, Fla., and the Phillies at Clearwater, Fla.

Herman's first group of Red Sox is due Thursday at Scottsdale, Ariz. All of the Cleveland Indians are to report Friday at Tucson, Ariz., and the New York Mets' pitchers and catchers will check in with Casey Stengel the same day at St. Petersburg, Fla.

All of the Los Angeles Dodgers will be on hand Saturday at Vero Beach, Fla., as will the Cards' battery crew at St. Petersburg.

The others are due next Sunday, when all the Chicago Cubs will be at Mesa, Ariz.; all the San Francisco Giants at Casa Grande, Ariz.; for a few days before moving to Phoenix; the Milwaukee battermen at West Palm Beach, and the Red Sox pitchers and catchers at Tampa, Fla.

When the rest of the Braves show up March 5 everybody will be at full strength.

Bradley Unanimous NEA All-American

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Princeton's Bill Bradley has decided to pass up his basketball scholarship to a Rhodes Scholarship, so he'll really have the chance to test himself against the best.

But if he's wondering what his chances might have been, the coaches of the National Basketball Association have the answer.

They made him the only unanimous choice on Newspaper Enterprise Association's 1964-65 All-America team, announced today.

In their exclusive annual poll for NEA, the nine coaches also selected Cazzie Russell of Michigan, Fred Hetzel of Davidson, Rick Barry of Miami (Fla.), Dave Stallworth of Wichita and Gail Goodrich of UCLA to the first team.

Due to another tie, the second team also consisted of six men.

It includes Bill Cunningham of North Carolina, the late Wayne Estes of Utah State, Bill Buntin of Michigan, Matt Guokas Jr. of St. Joseph's (Pa.), the only sophomore on either team, Ollie Johnson of San Francisco and Dave Bing of Syracuse.

Voting was on a 2-1 basis—two points for a first team vote and one for a second.

Bradley, of course, had 18 points. He was followed by Russell with 17, Hetzel 15, Barry 14, Goodrich 13, Stallworth 13, Estes and Cunningham 4 each, and Guokas, Bing, Johnson and Buntin 3 each.

Actually, Bradley's unanimous selection wasn't that surprising.

NBA coaches and players who have seen him throughout the last three years all had the same impression—he is the perfectly balanced ballplayer.

"It wasn't just his scoring that impressed me," said Ray Scott of the Detroit Pistons. "It was the way he handled the ball, passed off and generally took charge of his team."

Bradley, a member of the Olympic team last fall, can play either forward or guard, but has been up front more.

One game when he switched to guard—against Michigan in the Holiday Festival semi-finals—will be remembered as one of the greatest individual performances in Madison Square Garden.

Before fouling out with a little more than four minutes remaining, Bradley had scored 41 points and had Princeton 12 points ahead of the nation's top team.

Michigan eventually won the game by two points, an even greater (although heart-breaking) tribute to Bradley. He means that much to his team.

Bradley's average this season has been 31 points a game, third highest in the country.

The leading scorer is Barry who has been averaging 37 points a game in addition to 17.9 rebounds a game, fifth in the nation.

Barry is an exceptionally smooth-moving forward who will go high on the NBA draft.

Dave Stallworth, the Wichita forward, also will be a high choice. He was graduated at mid-semester after playing 16 games for the Shockers and scoring 25 points, a game. Like Bradley, this is his second year on NEA's All-America.

The first-team center is 6-8 Fred Hetzel, the sixth-leading scorer (26.1), eighth in field-goal percentage (.579) and 13th in rebounding (15.1).

Hetzel reminds a lot of people of Jerry Lucas (Cincinnati Royals) but his detractors say he lacks the desire to be a successful professional.

"I guess it's because he's sort of nonchalant about the whole thing when he's on the court," Davidson coach Lefty Driesell said.

"He's one of these kids who is so even-tempered that he always holds his poise. And the change might hurt his style. Jerry Lucas was that type of ballplayer and they said the same things about him."

Russell and Goodrich are the first-team guards. Russell plays a lot like Oscar Robertson, and he still has another year at Michigan.

Big (6-6) and strong (218) he is an excellent driver and rebounder. He is the seventh leading scorer in the country with a 26.7 average.

Goodrich, meanwhile, averages 23.1, and is the reason UCLA is a strong contender for another national title. He has done a remarkable job running a team that depended so much on Wall Hazzard last year.

Matt Guokas Jr. was the surprise choice on the second team. Only a sophomore, he transferred back to St. Joseph's (where his father was a star in the 1930s) after a year at Miami (Fla.).

He isn't much of a scorer, but due to his excellent team play and defense, St. Joseph's coach Jack Ramsay calls him the key to the fine season the Hawks are enjoying.

Bing, the other guard, is a 6-3 leaper who averages 23.1 for Syracuse. He plays forward, too.

Johnson, the center from University of San Francisco, is fifth in field goal percentage (.589) and sixth in rebounding (17.1).

Before his untimely death early this month when he was electrocuted after touching a downed powerline, Wayne Estes of Utah State was the nation's second leading scorer (33.7).

Bill Buntin of Michigan and Bill Cunningham of North Carolina, the forwards, have been excellent all-round performers for three years. Cunningham averages 24.8 and is a tremendous jumper while Buntin, a bullish 235-pounder, does most of Michigan's rebounding.

16-Year-Old Gal Leading Women's Skating Singles

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — Sixteen-year-old Peggy Fleming of Pasadena, Calif., held a surprising lead Saturday after the compulsory figures phase of women's singles at the 1965 North American Figure Skating championships.

The two-time U.S. champion overcame an early deficit in edging Valerie Jones, 16, and Petrus Burka, 18, both of Toronto, for first place.

The United States wound up the day with a clean sweep of the compulsory round as Vivian and Ronald Joseph of Highland Park, Ill., took the pairs lead and Lorna Dyer and John Carrell of Seattle forged into the lead in ice dancing.

A victory in any of the four events would be the first for the Americans in international competition since the 1961 air crash that wiped out the U.S. team en route to the world championships. Last year Canada swept the meet.

The figures count 60 per cent toward the title but Sunday afternoon's free skating finals will make up the remaining 40 per cent.

Miss Burka excels in this phase of the competition and is heavily favored to overtake her two rivals.

In men's singles Gary Visconti of Detroit, Donald Knight of Toronto and Scott Allen of Spokane, N. J., are virtually tied for the lead.

The free skating in men's singles, pairs and ice dancing also are scheduled Sunday.

Olympic Swimmer Takes 2 Firsts

BREMEN, Germany (AP) — Donna de Varona of Santa Clara, Calif., 17-year-old winner of three Olympic gold medals at Tokyo last year, won two races Saturday in the first half of a two-day international swimming meet.

Three other U.S. Olympians also won their specialties but took unexpected setbacks.

Miss de Varona won the 200-meter freestyle in 2:15.9 and the 200-meter individual medley in 2:30.1.

Sharon Stouder, 16-year-old Olympic butterfly champion from Glendora, Calif., and Claudia Kolb of Santa Clara, Calif., silver medalist in the breaststroke, had to settle for second places.

Brumel Fails To Set Record

NEW YORK (AP) — Russia's Valery Brumel failed in his announced quest of the indoor high jump record Saturday, settling for a winning 7-2, while a quartet of Californians dominated the wind-up of the two-day national and indoor track championships.

Brumel, the Olympic gold medalist and holder of both the indoor and outdoor marks, had announced a determined try at his indoor 7-4 standard.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Art Heyman is one of the most puzzling cases in professional basketball. From a 15.4 scorer as a rookie last season to a permanent fixture on the New York Knicks bench, and all due to a poor attitude.

Art Heyman

His troubles date back to last summer when the Knicks front office became upset with his conduct at some clinics for youngsters.

Heyman, a former Duke All-America won't discuss the specifics, but it's plain he's in disfavor with the New York management.

Then there was a fine for reporting overweight to preseason training camp. . . . He's been sulking ever since. . . .

Iowa 2nd Half Dumps Purdue

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — George Peoples fired a second half that carried Iowa to a 101-85 Big Ten basketball victory over Purdue Saturday and kept alive the Hawkeyes' faint hopes for the conference title.

Peoples scored 32 points, his career high, as Iowa boosted its Big Ten record to 7-2.

Purdue, now 3-6 in conference play, stayed in contention until the start of the second half. The Boilermakers cut the gap to 41-41 after the intermission but in the next 10 minutes Iowa had pulled away 75-55.

The Hawkeyes hit on 39 of 79 shots for 49 per cent but were outshot by Purdue, which connected on 32 of 56 tries from the floor for 57 per cent.

Iowa won the battle of rebounds, however, snagging 40 to 25 for Purdue.

The Boilermakers' top scorer was Dave Schellhase, who was held to 10 points in the first half but finished with 27. Bob Park-hiser added 17 points for Purdue.

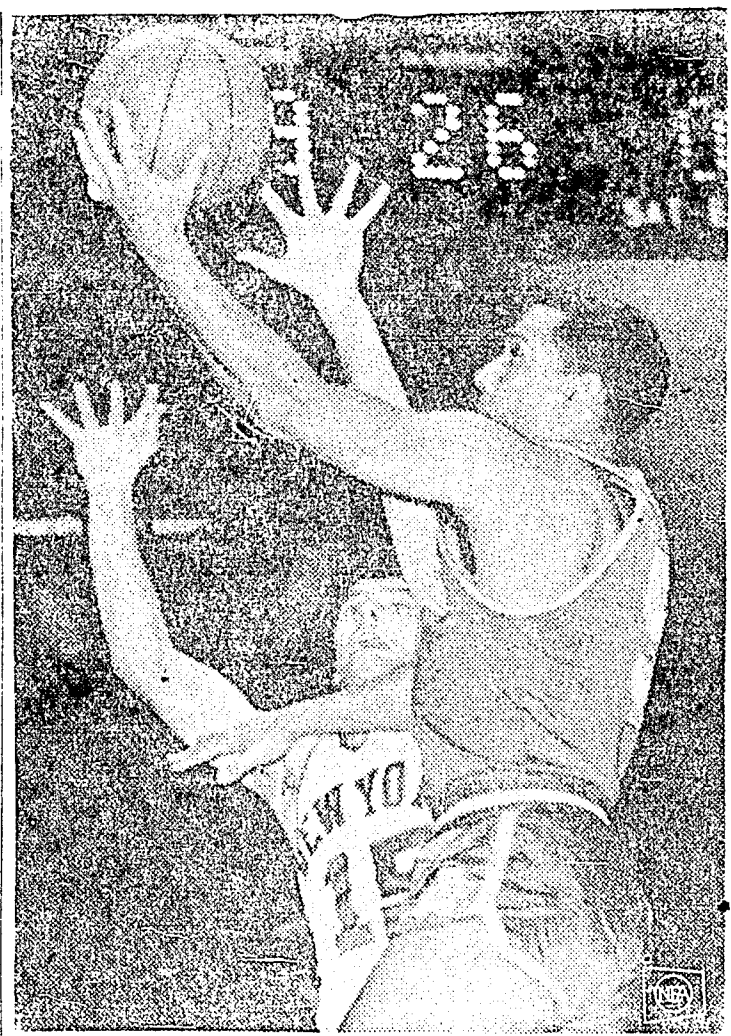

Gerry Jones scored 24 and Chris Pervall 15 for the Hawkeyes.

7-1 Prep Hardcourt Star Untouchable

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — You'd think it would be impossible to keep a 7-foot-1 giant under wraps—particularly a towering and talented youngster who is the most celebrated schoolboy basketball star ever developed in this teeming hotbed of basketball.

But for four years of ever-spreading fame, Lew Alcinder has been the teen-age untouchable.

The 17-year-old senior at Pow-er Memorial High School has been off-limits to newsmen, college coaches and scouts, and pro scouts ever since he started attracting attention as a gawky, 6-9 freshman.

No outsiders are allowed to talk to Alcinder according to the rules laid down by his coach, Jack Donohue, and fully agreed to by the boy himself and his parents.

To tighten the web of security, the Alcinders' phone is unlisted and their address is kept secret.

Why the protective screen?

"I know I'm hurting myself," he said, "but I just want to play. My pride is down to an all-time low."

Things got so bad a few weeks ago when Heyman demanding he be traded that the front office called him in for a conference and — among other things — made him promise not to pop off to the newspapers any more.

And why won't the Knicks trade him? . . . Because he's a New York boy with a good following. . . . Besides, the Knicks have quite a bundle invested in him. . . . So he just sits. . . . That's what happens when stubborn parties tangle.

General manager Don Wat-trick of the Detroit Pistons gives 24-year-old player-coach Dave DeBusschere the credit for the Pistons' rapid improvement this season. . . .

"The players learned he meant business when he benched some of them if they loafed," Wat-trick said. "He loves to win and he really has instilled the same spirit in the others."

It would sound corny if it weren't true. . . . But Detroit has been playing some excellent basketball lately. . . .

Fordham basketball coach John Bach, president of the Metropolitan Interscholastic Basketball Association, says the idea to expand the National Invitation Tournament (NIT) to 14 teams has been considered since 1958. "We decided on it this year," he said, "simply because we think there are enough good teams around."

The NIT also may be looking ahead to 1967 when the new Madison Square Garden opens with a capacity of 24,000. . . .

But don't look for any change in Southern or Atlantic Coast Conference thinking. . . . They have no plans to allow the runners-up in their postseason tournaments to play in the NIT. "The only leagues that allow their No. 2 teams to participate are the Western Athletic Conference and the Missouri Valley."

West Virginia should be back among the nation's top collegiate basketball teams next year. "We have three freshmen who could start on the varsity right now," coach George King says rather happily. . . .

Between you'n'me, two Eastern independent football powers which refuse to lower their academic standards for athletes will find the competition getting tougher each year. . . . One of them, has begun a gradual de-emphasis already.

Think Venturi Can Resume Play By Next Month

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ken Venturi and his doctor, both are confident the U. S. Open champion can resume competitive golf next month, probably at the Pensacola Open in Florida, March 5-8.

A circulatory ailment forced Venturi to the sidelines after the Bing Crosby tournament last month.

Dr. Robert M. Woods, team physician for the Los Angeles Dodgers, performed diagnostic surgery on Venturi Jan. 28. It disclosed numbness in his hands was caused by inflammation of the arteries. A medication treatment was prescribed and the golfer was told to rest.

Dr. Woods treated a similar ailment for pitcher Sandy Koufax of the Dodgers in 1962. The following year the left-hander was baseball's top pitcher.

"I haven't touched a club since the Crosby except to putt a little," Venturi says, "but I feel wonderful now. The middle finger of my right hand still is not too good but better."

In Los Angeles, Dr. Woods said Venturi had shown a marked improvement.

Dr. Woods said Venturi should be able to play at Pensacola, commenting, "He may be a little rusty when he returns to the tour, but that's to be expected. With warmer weather, he will be the same as he was and maybe even better."

On Friday, an unusual scene will be enacted at Palm Springs. Venturi will hit golf balls under the scrutiny of Dr. Woods.

"He wants to see what happens during the pressure of holding a and swinging the club," the golfer explained. "I'll know in Palm Springs whether I'll be going to Pensacola or not."

Gophers Barely Escape Defeat By Northwestern

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Minnesota's title-hungry Gophers narrowly blew a 14-point lead by allowing Northwestern to climb within one point in the second half but held on for a 88-77 Big Ten basketball triumph Saturday night.

The victory kept the Gophers within one game of league-leading Michigan. The two teams meet at Minneapolis Tuesday night and a Minnesota victory would enable the Gophers to pull into a first place tie.

It looked like an easy triumph for the Gophers who took a 44-33 halftime lead with Lou Hudson providing the punch in the first half.

Early in the second half Minnesota piled up a 14-point lead but Northwestern rallied on the shooting of sophomore Jim Burns, coming within one point at 60-50. Hudson and Don Yates then led another rally which finally carried the Gophers to their eighth consecutive triumph in nine games.

Hudson paced Minnesota with 31 points and Burns topped the Wildcats with 30. Northwestern played without the services of two starters — Ron Kozlicki and Walt Tiberti — who were both out with illness.

Brumel Fails To Set Record

NEW YORK (AP) — Russia's Valery Brumel failed in his announced quest of the indoor high jump record Saturday, settling for a winning 7-2, while a quartet of Californians dominated the wind-up of the two-day national and indoor track championships.

Brumel, the Olympic gold medalist and holder of both the indoor and outdoor marks, had announced a determined try at his indoor 7-4 standard.

Needs All His Time

"Lewie needs all his time for school, basketball and being a teen-ager. If we didn't handle it this way he'd be swarmed under—the pressure would be unfair. You'd be amazed at the requests we get for his time—from newspapermen, magazine writers, television and radio people, and the colleges."

Even with the restrictions, young Alcinder has been the subject of innumerable newspaper and magazine articles and has been seen in action on television. It's all been sort of second-hand, however, with the boy not directly approached.

It is generally conceded that Alcinder can write his own ticket as far as college is concerned. He's a good student, with an 85 average, who is interested in journalism.

Alcinder averaged a mere 12 points a game as a freshman, then 22, 26, and currently 30 as a senior, hitting about 75 per cent of his shots. His rebound average the past two seasons has been 20 per game. And as a rule he plays only a half a game, or some 16 minutes.

Moves Good Too

Although he towers over his opposition, Alcinder has much more than height. The 235-pounder is supple and moves well, and is a good passer.

Coach Joe Lapchick of St. John's, a noted basketball figure for decades, gives Alcinder unqualified endorsement: "He'll be the center for the United States in the 1968 Olympics and will be the first $50,000-a-year rookie in the pros."

Alcinder, whose father is a policeman in the subway system, is an only child. He lives in a middle-class environment, and according to his coach, he has been extremely level-headed about his acclaim.

"He's taken it all in stride," says the coach. "He jokes about all the rumors on where he'll go to college and the stories, but he doesn't worry about the publicity—only about his basketball and his grades."

Hoosiers Check Badgers 100-87

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Indiana checked a late drive by Wisconsin and beat the Badgers 100-87 in a Big Ten basketball game Saturday afternoon.

The Hoosiers, looking ragged after their double overtime loss to Michigan Monday night, led all the way but saw their margin shrink from 24 points to seven as they turned cold late in the second half. They were in front 50-34 at halftime.

Dick VanArsdale led Indiana with 26 points, hitting 10 of 20 shots from the field and six free throws without a miss. Tom VanArsdale added 23 points on nine of 16 and five of 11 and hit a field goal at the buzzer to round out the 100 total.

The victory gave Indiana a 6-3 record in the Big Ten and 16-3 for the season. Wisconsin dropped to 1-8 and 7-12.

The Los Angeles Dodgers are high on John Purdin who broke into the majors this fall with a 2-0 two-hit victory over

Earl D. Eisenhower Predicts Deadlock On Reapportionment

Dateline Springfield

Earl D. Eisenhower, the top Republican vote getter in the Illinois House of Representatives at-large election last November, predicts that the legislature will fail in its attempt to reapportion the House and Senate.

Eisenhower, brother of the former United States president, believes that the highly regarded list of "blue ribbon" members of the House, will generally vote along party lines on important legislation like reapportionment and revenue reform.

Most newspapers in Illinois have urged the "blue ribbon" members to work together on a bipartisan basis in finding the answers to the state's worsening problems. It was hoped that since many new House members had originally indicated they would serve only one term in the legislature they would place the welfare of the state above partisan politics.

Springfield Not Too Bad According to Eisenhower, many of these freshmen legislators are taking a liking to Springfield and may want to come back two years from now.

Chicago Attorney Lincoln-Douglas Speaker Here

Theodore F. Crawley, of Chicago, vice-president of the National Bar Association, and past president of the Cook County Bar Association spoke before approximately 50 persons at the Lincoln-Douglas dinner at the Bethel AME church Friday evening.

Crawley, a member of Ward, Crawley and Ward of Chicago, commented on little known facts concerning the life of Frederick Douglass, who was prominent in the emancipation movement.

He pointed out that Douglass, rather than Booker T. Washington, was the motivating force behind the organization of vocational training schools, and was active in seeking emancipation of the Negro working with President Lincoln.

"It was Douglass," Crawley pointed out, "who was one of the first proponents of having the Negro drafted into the Union army."

Douglass, who made two appearances in Jacksonville on speaking engagements, paid for his own manumission by working in a shipyard in England.

'Outhousers' Plan Republican Return In Next Session

By DICK EMERY Statehouse Correspondent

SPRINGFIELD—That somewhat unique group of Republican candidates who ran unsuccessfully on the Orange ballot last November may be dismayed, but they do have one big advantage — they're organized.

The group is made up of the 37 GOP candidates for the Illinois House of Representatives who failed to get elected. They have gotten together to try to restore unity to the party and to rally enough support to regain control of the House in 1967.

For want of a name, a Chicago political writer has dubbed them the "Outhousers." They met in Springfield on Feb. 1 to organize, and will meet regularly on the first Monday of each succeeding month throughout the current legislative session.

They chose Harland Warren of Ottawa as chairman, and Ray Anderson, Galesburg, as secretary and treasurer.

"All 37 defeated candidates will not necessarily be candidates again in 1966," Warren said, "but we'll all work with the present incumbents and party leaders to restore control of the House to the party."

Former House Speaker John Lewis, R-Marshall, is looked upon by many as the seated representative of the ousted boys. Although he avoids labeling himself the "voice of the minority party," he did say "I hope that all this legislative experience represented by these 37 men can be returned to the House."

Lewis occupies an unusual position in the House this term. He served as Speaker in the 1963 session, and ordinarily when a speaker is re-elected to the house and his party is in the minority, he becomes leader.

But Lewis was passed over in the selection of Albert Hachmeister, Chicago, as minority leader. This Lewis remains virtually a man without a position, so far as leadership is concerned.

Lewis also said that Illinois needs a fair and just reapportionment to spread GOP representation more equitably. "Some counties in the state have no Republican representation at all," Lewis explained.

At Large Defeat "All 37 men ran high in their own districts. If they had not run at-large, they would have been elected," Lewis commented.

Four co-chairmen were named by the group. They are Helmut Staley, Chicago; Richard Letestro, Suburban Cook County; W. R. (Kenny) Davidson.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hensley drove to Virginia, Wednesday, where they attended funeral services for a niece's husband and spent some time with her sister and others.

IC Alumni Body Pledges Stronger Local Chapters

The Illinois College alumni directors, meeting on the college campus yesterday, approved plans to strengthen geographic chapters and alumni groups and also evaluated an Alumni Fund campaign schedule, similar to one last year which set new records in the number of participating graduates and former students.

Over fifteen thousand dollars has been received so far at the college from members of the alumni organization. The 1964-65 Alumni Fund closes June 30th, according to President Troy A. Chapin of Evanston, Ill.

Chapin said that the previous annual fund raised $64,365.10 from 25% of the 5,155 known graduates and former students. Alumni requests added another $100,400.00 last year.

The alumni directors heard a report by Dr. L. Vernon Caine, president of the college, which cited recent campus building activities and a sound current fiscal program. The president also outlined problems which are developing in Illinois state higher education.

A report from the college alumni office was given by A. John Pearson, director of alumni affairs.

An alumni seminar will be part of the spring commencement activities, according to committee chairman and president-elect Henry J. Meyer of Jacksonville. Commencement exercises will be held June 6.

Of the 29 board members, which include the alumni trustees, 23 are from Illinois. The oldest class year represented on the board is 1920, and the youngest is 1961. Each year, the alumni at large elect five board members, an alumni president, and one alumni trustee for a three-year term.

In addition to the business meetings, the alumni board members Saturday attended a luncheon, the I.C. dual swimming meet against Iowa Wesleyan College, and a special tour of new campus facilities.

7th Ward Contest In City Primary Election Tuesday

All eyes will be on the seventh ward Tuesday, the only contest in the city-wide primary election on either the Republican or Democrat ticket.

The contest in the seventh ward will feature incumbent George Davis of 928 North West and Carl Bourn of 1079 North Diamond, both seeking to represent the Republican party as alderman in the city general election April 20.

Republican voters in precincts 19, 20 and 21 will decide the contest. Elsewhere in the city, voters of both parties will go through the motions of an election.

Republicans have filled their slate for aldermen and other city offices. Tuesday's primary election will allow Democrats to write-in their choice for city clerk and treasurer as well as an alderman in the 5th ward.

Most observers anticipate a light vote in both parties with a slight increase due to the activity of the two candidates in the seventh ward. Election results will be telephoned to the office of City Clerk Harvey Green. Final results are expected before 9 o'clock Tuesday evening.

Battle lines for control of city government have been drawn and will be decided at the general election on April 20. Highlight of the city-wide election campaign will be the race for mayor between Democrat incumbent Byron Holkenbrink of 348 East Michigan and Republican Fred C. Gray of 944 Edgehill who is completing his first term as alderman of the fifth ward.

Both candidates will have many issues to discuss as they try for the $10,000 a year position as chief officer in Jacksonville's city government.

The tempo of the campaign is expected to rise sharply as soon as the primary is out of the way.

Republicans Harvey Green of 1610 Mound Avenue, incumbent city clerk; and Rose P. Cosgriff of 922 West Douglas, candidate for city treasurer will have their names on the ballot Tuesday. No Democrats have sought either office.

Races for alderman in each of the city's seven wards are: First ward—Jimmie Fernandez (R) of 624 North East; incumbent: Loren E. Rogers (D) of 345 East Wolcott.

Second ward — Lawrence Quinlan (R) of 271 Hardin, incumbent; and Dan F. Lahey (D) of 415 East Douglas.

Third ward — Kenneth E. Biggs (R) of 841 South East; and William A. Yording (D) of 919 Bibbs, incumbent.

Also surviving are three daughters: Frederica Chiddix of Easton, Pa., Marcella Palm of Lakeland, Fla. and Dorothy Otten of Springfield; six grandchildren; one brother, A. H. Wilson of Boulder, Colo. and several nieces and nephews.

Reverend Wilson attended Drake University at Des Moines, Ia. where he received his theological training. He was a member of Vermont Lodge 116 A.F. and A.M. of Vermont, Ill., the Rushville Commandery and was a Knight Templar of the Peoria Consistory.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Williamson Funeral Home with Reverend William Sturgess officiating. Burial will be in Chapin cemetery.

The family will meet friends at the funeral home from 7-8:30 p.m. Monday. Masonic rites will be conducted at 8:30 p.m. Monday at the funeral home.

Fire Destroys Pasture Land A grass fire, which started from an unknown origin, Saturday morning destroyed about 20 acres of pasture land north-east of the city before being brought under control an hour later.

City firemen reported that the fire spread through the grass pasture land from 622 East Independence to East Oak street.

Firemen were forced to call the city water truck to the scene to supply water to fight the blaze that raged for nearly an hour.

Time of the call received at the fire department was 11:51 a.m.

The New YMCA

Although the campaign to provide capital funds for a new YMCA building has not been launched officially many interested citizens are now working hard to line up the challenge gifts necessary to assure the success of the venture.

During the course of this preliminary solicitation it has become evident that some misconceptions exist, largely concerning the overall purposes of the Y program and with respect to the choice of a site in the Mound area in the western portion of the city. Comments have frequently been expressed that the new Y building should be erected in the downtown district or in blighted areas in need of renewal. These observations, while quite understandable, fail to take into consideration that the new Sherwood Eddy YMCA building is designed to serve the needs of entire families, children and adults, without regard to their economic status.

The site selected by the YMCA Board, after much study, is ideally suited to serve the entire community. The 31 acre tract is spacious, attractive and easily accessible. Its size will permit out-of-door activities and sports as well as those normally conducted in a Y building.

Quincy is just completing a very successful fund-raising effort for a new YMCA. It will not be built in a congested part of town but rather in a comparatively open area.

The Jacksonville Y should not be penalized because its building program is not a part of slum clearance. It would be ridiculous to erect a beautiful structure such as the Sherwood Eddy YMCA in a run-down neighborhood with rapidly depreciating property values.

Ugly Mountains

Most of us have, at one time or another, been offended by the sight of mountains of old cars stacked high on the fringes of our cities and towns. But it seems, to paraphrase the cry of the western pioneers long ago, that "there's gold in them thar piles."

They provide much of the steel for new cars today. Old autos are almost 100 per cent redeemable. Every ton of scrap used, it is said, saves up to two tons of iron ore plus the ton of coke and half ton of limestone needed to reduce it. This saves our ever-dwindling supply of natural resources. It cuts the amount of foreign ore we import, though this is offset to a considerable degree by our export of scrap to foreign mills.

All of this sounds like good business, which it no doubt is. Nevertheless, it does nothing to erase the ugliness of those huge piles of junk we see along our streets and highways. The problem is how to get this thriving business out of sight where it no longer will provide an eyesore. It is heartening that exactly this is contemplated as a part of the newly proposed legislative program to preserve and increase America's natural beauty.

Dear Ann:

Show No Interest in Grandchildren

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My wife and I have been married two years. Our little girl is one year old. She walks already, says a few words and is a darling child.

My wife's parents are fine, intelligent people in their early fifties. When we invite them to our home they are cordial but we've never been invited to their home for a meal.

Not once have they picked up our child or played with her. They show no interest in their other three grandchildren either. Last week I was so hurt by their actions I asked my mother-in-law for an explanation. She said, "We raised our children, educated them and now we are through. We want nothing to do with baby sitting or diapers. We have earned peace and quiet and we want to spend our leisure time with our friends."

Is something wrong with them, or is it us?—BWD
Dear BWD: Did you ask your mother-in-law to do diapers or sit with your child? If you did and she refused I could not criticize her.

But in-laws who have never picked up a grandchild do not sound normal to me. Such a lack of warmth is beyond belief. These people are to be pitied because they are missing life's sweetest rewards.

Dear Ann Landers: When are the makers going to assert themselves and receive the credit they deserve?
If I tell my husband at dinner that I have had a hard day he says, "Doing what? I wish I could stay home and loaf around like you do."

One evening I said something about "Our money" and he yelled, "What do you mean 'OUR' money? When did you last earn a dime?"

If it weren't for the children I'd chuck it all and go back to work so I could have a few dollars to call my own. My husband makes me feel like a beggar. Whenever he hands me a few dollars he makes such a big deal out of it you'd think I was a charity case.

Several months ago a friend of mine had a nervous breakdown. My husband said "What did 'SHE' have to worry about? She had a beautiful home, a nice husband, three swell kids and no job!"

Say something, will you? I'm FROTHING.

Dear Frothing: The housewife is either the best-paid or the worst-paid woman in the world, depending on the man she's married to.

If her husband is an ignorant, insensitive slob (like yours) she is the worst-paid. If her husband is a thoughtful, understanding guy (like mine) she's the best-paid.

Dear Ann Landers: Regarding the vexed veterinarian who criticized you for calling him a "vet."

When my wife and I lived in London, we always took our dog to a You-Know-What in Kensington. It was an embarrassingly posh establishment. The waiting room was filled with chauffeurs and pedigreed pooches. Among the patients were the King's (now Duke of Windsor) Corgis. We paid our bill in guineas (and that's "real" money). No one ever thought of calling the man anything but a vet and he didn't mind at all.

Here in Connecticut, however, the man who takes care of our hound looked down his nose when I called him by the popular abbreviation. He hastened to tell me he is not a vet, but a doctor—and would I please call him "Doctor?" I responded, "I presume your fees are tax deductible, Doctor?" He had to admit they were not, but now I call him doctor just the same. —HARTFORD, CONN.

Dear Heart: Here's your letter and the subject is closed. After I printed the last beef I received a deluge of mail from ex-servicemen who wanted to know what "vet." I pass, Brother.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Churchill Never Happier

Than in Courting Danger

By WASHINGTON STAFF

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) —

Many of the best stories about Winston Churchill dealt with his penchant for courting danger. A little-known incident was his behavior when he went with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to view the Allied crossing of the Rhine River in World War II.

Eisenhower was briefing war correspondents on the success of the operation. One of them asked: "What did Mr. Churchill do?"

He threw back his head and laughed.

"The last I saw him," said Ike, "he was at the helm of a landing barge scooting around our side of the Rhine. He seemed to be having a wonderful time."

When Defense Secretary Robert McNamara entered Bethesda Naval Hospital with an upper respiratory ailment shortly after President Johnson recovered from his famous cold, reporters asked Pentagon information chief Arthur Sylvester when his boss would be back at work.

The answer: "The doctors say two to four days. But I don't know what McNamara says."

Asked for his reaction to President Johnson's inaugural address, Idaho's Republican Gov. Robert Smylie paraphrased Marc Anthony's speech following Julius Caesar's assassination:

"I have come to inaugurate a president, not to praise him."

Gov. Smylie brought three aides to Washington with him. Knowing that the entourage planned to head to Chicago for the Republican National Committee meeting after the inauguration, an observer asked:

"Who's running the state while you fellows are traveling around the country?"

Answered one of the aides breezily: "Oh, we put it on automatic pilot when we left."

At a press conference to answer questions about the 1968 budget, Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon and Budget Director Kermit Gordon formed a pretty smooth answering team.

Said Dillon at the beginning: "Kermit will take the expenditures and I'll handle the income. We'll split the difference."

Balding Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., has been taking quite a bit of ribbing since he showed up for the opening of Congress with a new hairpiece.

The first person who noticed the "New McGovern" was a Senate elevator operator. His greeting: "Hi, senator. I see you got a new overcoat."

Ever since he became postmaster general over a year ago, John Gronowski has been averaging about 15 hours a day on the job.

When someone asked him what part the Post Office Department would play in The Great Society, he answered: "You know, the President talks about The Great Society as a place where leisure is a welcome chance to build and reflect and a place where men can renew contact with nature."

But at the rate he has been working us, I'm beginning to get the idea that The Great Society doesn't include the cabinet.

FINDING THE WAY

Possess What You Own

BY RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Not long ago a little lady in our city died. There were no immediate heirs and there were few persons who knew her well. She had lived to herself, dressing in severe and threadbare clothes, eating from cracked dishes, and spending little. Yet the executor of the will discovered expensive china, silver service and a considerable amount of money which had been hoarded for some rainy day. The lady owned much; she possessed nothing.

It is one thing to own a violin; it is another thing to possess the ability to play it with freedom.

It is one thing to own a book; it is another thing to read it with understanding.

It is one thing to own a ticket to travel; it is another thing to possess the ability to understand what one sees and appreciate what one experiences.

It is one thing to own one's freedom; it is another thing to act with that delicious joy that comes to those who move with the security of responsible liberty.

"O I could sing such grandeur and glories about you: You have not known what you are, you have slumbered upon yourself all your life! The mockeries are not you! Underneath them and with them I see you lurk.

Whatever you are, claim your own."

So challenged Walt Whitman and once more it's the demand to possess what we own.

Possession is more than nine-tenths of the law; possession is one hundred per cent of love. It is loving the possibility of life to avoid hiding a light under a bushel, burying a talent, or withdrawing from life. St. Paul insisted that those who were really the workers with God might have nothing yet they possess all things.

When men measure the worth of their fellows they are liable to ask, "How much does he own?" They might add to it, "How does he use what he owns?" The true measure of a person is known in his ability to possess what he owns!

World's Champion Soybean Producer A Most Busy Man

John Reiser, Jr., of Suburban Home Farms, Ashland, has raised the biggest crop of soybeans in recorded history — 73½ bushels per acre. This bested the previous record of 67.3 bushels set nine years ago by a Mississippi farmer.

Record keeping and management planning are absolutely necessary in today's complex agriculture. Here Reiser is shown in his study figuring out a fertilizer-crop rotation.

Although Reiser is tops in soybeans he'd rather raise corn and turn the crop into beef and pork. Last year his corn averaged 150 bushels per acre. He's shown here in one of his feedlots, with concrete floor and loafing shed—home sweet home for 107 head of good heifer calves and 200 lively shoats.

73½ Bushels Tops Record Set In 1955

Early this month John Reiser, Jr., of Ashland was named Soybean King of the World and ever since he's been busier than the proverbial one-armed paper-hanger with the itch. He's been plagued by seed improvement and fertilizer specialists, by agronomists, and by magazine and newspaper reporters and photographers. If that isn't enough, he's the president of the lively Ashland Lions club and its intensive winter program which included last night's Amateur Talent Quest, plus street signs for the town and a Bloodmobile visit. The First Try

Last spring, at the request of Cass County Farm Adviser Russell Meridith, Reiser entered the first Illinois Five-Acre Soybean Growing contest, sponsored by the National Soybean Council, U.I. agronomy department and the Extension Service. He chose a field of fine black soil that had been in alfalfa and red clover and hogged off for two years. He had plowed it 12 inches deep in the fall of 1963. Then he fertilized it with 334 pounds of 4-10-10 per acre and planted 81 pounds of certified Harosoy 63 per acre in 32 inch rows, with Amiben pre-emergence herbicide. He cultivated it once, combined it in the early fall, and hauled the beans to the Prentice elevator.

"Nearly Ideal Conditions" "I had nearly ideal conditions on the test plot," Reiser said, "although I thought that a shower or two would have helped. At least they looked dry to me in August. But it couldn't have been too dry or they wouldn't have put out so many beans. There was no sign of disease in the plot anytime. The adjacent field averaged 65.7 bushels. I had two other fields that made 35 and 37 bushels. They went in the ground in perfect shape, but we got a two inch rain that night, which is the worst thing that can happen when you use Amiben. It cuts down germination badly, half a shower or two would have even more. But I'm convinced that soybeans are poor competitors to weeds, so I use herbicides and take my chances on the weather." Reiser is a strong user of commercial fertilizers, "up to soil test, plus a little more." Worth More "If commercial fertilizers were worth anything 20 years ago they're a bargain now," he asserted, pointing out that despite inflation the per unit cost of fertilizer is less than it was before World War II. Reiser stopped using a disc 16 years ago and believes it is per acre and followed other shells it and one of the best moves he ever made. He likes fall plowing and plying 250 pounds of potash, 150 pounds of superphosphate annually and about 1,500 hogs per acre in the spring as soon as the weather starts showing on the bottom sides of clods in the field. Then, depending on the amount of crusting, he may plant or pull the cultivator just ahead of the planter. Uses Soil Tests He farms 468 acres, owns of 5-15-8 starter fertilizer per acre.

two years ago showed a pH of 5.8, he added three tons of lime 150 bushels per acre. He field He was born 40 years ago on a farm six miles south of Ashland. He graduated from Ashland high school. He's a member of the Cass County Extension council and attends every school offered by the Extension Service. ## Perennial Spring Query: Did Cold Kill Peach Buds?

JERSEYVILLE — With the advent of the final weeks of February, the annual discussion whether or not the peach crop has been killed or damaged gets under way in the Jersey-Colhoun area.

Growers will tell you that a temperature of lower than ten below zero may kill or seriously damage peach buds, particularly if the low readings are continued for a number of days in succession.

The present winter has witnessed temperatures in both Jersey and Calhoun counties with reported readings on several mornings as low as fourteen to sixteen degrees below the zero mark.

A checkup Thursday reveals that a certain amount of pessimism exists among some growers in Calhoun and Jersey counties relative to the 1965 peach crop. Some growers believe the buds were in a state of less resistance as a result of a number of weeks of unusually mild weather before the sub-zero onslaught began, and may have been killed or badly damaged. Other growers point at the idea and still others are adopting the policy of "let's wait and see."

Can Spare Some Buds

One grower from Calhoun county pointed out that peaches went begging for buyers in some orchards last season. He pointed out that goodly percentage of peach buds may be killed but still leave enough for a good crop of fine quality and size. Last season was cited as an example. More than fifty per cent of peach buds were killed by the sub-zero weather of the 1963-64 winter.

The northern part of the Calhoun area was the hardest hit, while south Calhoun suffered small damage. On the whole, a very good peach crop was produced.

Different With Apples

Temperatures calculated to kill apple fruit buds have not existed this winter. The danger the apple crop must escape generally comes in the form of late spring freezing weather which arrives when the fruit buds are in blossom. Then, too, there is the growing season constant threat of hail which may come and wipe out a crop at most any stage of growth.

ILLINOIS OUTLOOK LETTER

HOG PRICE PROSPECTS BETTER

This year, 1965, seems likely to be average, or a little better than last year, for hog producers. Prices at central markets may average $16 to $17. We make this forecast with some reluctance—since forecasters had a bad year with the hog market in 1964. We hope to do better this year.

The stumbling block last year was that farmers as a group did not do what they indicated in reports to the USDA. At the first December, 1963, reports from farmers indicated that they had cut the fall pig crop 8 percent. But slaughter of hogs in the first half of 1964 was up 1 percent. At the first of last June, reports showed that they had cut the spring pig crop 8 percent. But slaughter in the last half of the year was cut only 2 percent.

If farmers had cut back hog production 8 percent, as indicated by the reports they turned in, prices would likely have gone up 10 or 12 percent. As it was, however, prices at mid-west central markets averaged only $15.31 a hundred pounds, which was a shade (seven cents) lower than in the previous year and the lowest since 1959.

Far Too Much Beef That price for hogs might be considered fairly good, considering the very large supply of beef on retail meat counters every week. Commercial beef production in 1964 totaled 18 billion pounds. That was 12 percent more than in 1963 and 18 percent more than was turned out in 1962.

The USDA report for last December 1 again indicated that farmers were trimming hog production. It showed the fall pig crop down 7 percent from the year before—and the number of pigs and hogs on hand down 4 percent.

Hog slaughter in December, however, was down less than 1 percent from the 1964 level, and for most of January it was down only 4 percent. Prices remain steady.

If feeding facilities permit, young growing heifers should be fed separately from brood cows since they need more protein.

4-H Federation Officers Meet At Local Camp

Fifty-five 4-H Federation officers from eight counties will conclude the first overnight "winter workshop" to be held at the Western Illinois 4-H camp with a dinner at the Blackhawk restaurant at 1 p.m. today.

They'll undoubtedly enjoy their meal, for the menu for Saturday evening and Sunday breakfast was on the scant side. The overnight meeting was held in the new and electrically heated crafts building, the only heated building on the grounds.

The officers and their advisors are from McDonough, Hancock, Peoria, Fulton, Adams, Morgan, Scott and Sangamon counties, signed in at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Supper was hot dogs toasted in the big fireplace, buns, milk and fruit, with toasted marshmallows and popcorn just before "lights out." Breakfast will be fruit, toast, doughnuts and milk.

The program will be "Toward a Better 4-H Federation" and will be led by Hugh Wetzel, 4-H specialist, Urbana.

Representing Morgan county are Kathy and Meri Sue Wallace of the Peppy Peppers; Tom Johnson and Wayne Bloomfield of the Barea Ag club; Larry Martin of the Northside Seniors and Vernie Thomas of the Arcadia Aces.

Worn-Out Layers Weaken, Puzzle Chicken Market

Changes in the market for fowl have caused a decrease in profits in the egg industry, reports R. P. Bentz, U. I. egg and poultry marketing economist. Bentz said that the number of farm chickens sold each year, excluding broilers, has been increasing since 1960 at the rate of 2.3 percent a year. Over 190 million farm chickens were sold in 1963.

The U.S. average farm price of mature chickens decreased from 12.2 cents a pound in 1960 to 10 cents a pound in 1963. Bentz noted. The average annual price decline has been 4.5 percent in contrast to an average annual increase of 2.3 percent in numbers sold.

Prices received by Illinois farmers for worn-out layers averaged about two cents below the national average. Changes have also occurred in the proportion of farm chickens

Reelect Shaffer Greene Farm Bureau Head

CARROLLTON — Carl Shaffer of Carrollton was reelected president of the Greene County Farm Bureau board for the third time Wednesday at an organization meeting held in the Farm Bureau building. Other officers named were: James Esarey of White Hall, vice president; John D. Carter Jr., treasurer; and Froman Holtzworth of Eldred, secretary.

The members of the board met in an all day session and had lunch at Day's Colonial Room. The other members of the board are Wallace Davenport, Greenfield; Rance C. FROZEN TOMATOES? YES, PLEASE!

There is something about a tomato that makes it hard to freeze. That is — there was. Now liquid nitrogen-freezing can give consumers tomato slices in frozen form.

Green beans, strawberries, asparagus and melons are also improved by nitrogen freezing according to a U.S.D.A. scientist.

Nitrogen freezing is more costly than air blast and other present commercial methods, and it requires strict control but the results so far have been excellent.

Rockets And Space-

By-Products Of Space

By WALTER B. HENDRICKSON JR.

There are many by-products of space research that are useful in our daily lives. One of these resulted from the need to make instruments extremely small to save the limited space in satellites and rockets. To do this transistors replaced the bulkier vacuum tubes in much of a satellite's electronic equipment.

Yes, as you've probably guessed, the transistor was later put into the transistor radios which are such an important part of our daily lives.

Transistors also aid in the designing of the new slim television cabinets that are replacing the older, before-the-dict plump models.

A transistor is a small piece of silicon or germanium which can amplify (strengthen) a weak electrical signal. If this signal is caused by a radio wave, for example, the transistor can boost the signal enough for the speaker to make a sound.

Aids In Work And Play While the transistor joins us at play, other materials used in space join us at work. One of these is found in that handy cooking ware that can be popped from the freezer right into the oven. This cooking ware is made of the same glass-ceramics as that of many missile nose cones.

In space, where there is no air to reflect or conduct heat, the shadowed side of a nose cone will be in a 300 degree below zero "deep freeze." A few seconds later, as it plunges back into the atmosphere, air friction will give the nose cone a super oven-like heat of up to 14,000°. Since glass-ceramics can stand these extremes of temperature it is easy for it to take the trip from our freezer at home to the oven.

Nose Cone In Picture The picture at the top of the page shows the glass-ceramic coated nose cone from a Discoverer satellite being recovered after a trip into space. A glass-ceramic article, either nose cone or ovenware, starts life looking much like any other piece of glass. Mixed in with it, however, is a special nucleating agent that will form crystals. Now the article is cooled until the nucleating agent forms its small crystals. The article is next heated to make these crystals grow. This produces the desired white glass-ceramic.

Largest eye found among land animals belongs to the ostrich, not to a mammal.

FROZEN STIFF ... Wave of zero weather sweeping through much of the Midwest forced most who had to brave the elements to use the expression "I thought I'd be frozen stiff." Here, Bruce Schmitt, Dubuque, holds up his prize fish, "frozen stiff" in a Boy Scout Fishing Derby. It was really cold. (UPI Telephoto)

SHOULDER DEEP in a snow drift, pretty Phoebe Chidester, University of Wisconsin student from Madison, finds the shovel heavy with snow and the temperature 20 below zero recently. But Phoebe, a junior majoring in art, keeps shoveling to get the snow that drifted across the walk at the Delta Delta Delta sorority house cleared so the coeds can brave the weather to attend classes. ### Let's Go Birding

The Highlight

By Emma Mae Leonard

A natural question that is often asked a traveler or vacationer is: What was the highlight of your trip? If the traveler happens to be a bird observer, the first question that pops out is usually: What new bird did you see? Or what did you find this time?

If any one of the three members of the local Audubon Society were asked such a question after returning from a tour of part of the Southwest in January, the answer would probably be the same: the Whooping Crane. There can be many reasons for this involuntary answer, but perhaps three will suffice.

Real Thrill In the first place, two out of the three travelers had never seen a Whooping Crane and perhaps had never dreamed of seeing one. Finding a new bird to add to the life list of a bird watcher is always a thrill.

In the second place, many a bird lover has made a trip to the only place, the Arkansas National Wildlife Refuge, where the world's only flock of Whooping Cranes spends its winter, especially to see this carefully protected rare bird of North America—and made the trip in vain.

This almost extinct Whooping Crane has slowly increased from 14 in 1940 to over 30 in 1964, and this slight increase has resulted only through complete protection and encouragement by Sports Fisheries and Wildlife, U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, in the Department of the Interior. Practically all of the approaches to the feeding and resting grounds of these few cranes are closed to visitors so, 708 B.C.

that these shy birds will not be disturbed in any way.

Gaze From Tower

There is one place, a tower, which one may climb, if he can climb steep steps, and from which he may lawfully gaze in search of any white forms or specks in the distance that might be Whooping Cranes. Naturally these three amateur birders hardly expected to see even one of these coveted birds.

The third reason is the climax of our story. Two of the three observers climbed at their own risk part of the steep tower. When they stopped to catch their breath, they gazed longingly down toward the water-framed marsh and, to their astonishment, saw there three handsome, almost man-tall white birds standing to their full height—three Whooping Cranes near enough to identify without the use of binoculars. Far out on another extension of the marsh shone twelve tiny white specks, perhaps twelve more Whooping Cranes.

Feeling sorry for the one who couldn't climb, the two went in search of their companion to report the good news: but the tables were turned. The non-climber had found a spot not far from the foot of the tower from which she could see well the three great white cranes. The two observers joined her and watched the three Whooping Cranes withdraw sedately into the sheltering marsh.

At four o'clock in the afternoon the Whooping Cranes had been the focal point of the picture of the marsh; at four-thirty they were lost in the monotonous gray expanse of marsh and heavy clouds dripping with rain. But what a highlight the memory was!

Javelin throwing is one of the oldest events in the Olympic Games, going back as far as 708 B.C.

"Hey, it's Uncle Stuart," Tom glowed. "How did you find us in this out-of-the-way place?"

The elderly man climbed into the back seat and switched on the dome light. "By the use of simple deduction," he explained. "I was driving home from town when I came on the police at the scene."

"But how did you know it was us?" Sid gulped. "We're awfully sorry and everything. I mean about the poor guy we hit."

"That was easy," Uncle Stuart grinned. "The black marks on the pavement where you skidded to a stop—and again where you took off—and the tiny flecks of red paint I'd smeared on the back tires told me what had happened."

"But what about the fellow we hit?" Tom managed weakly. "And the police, are they looking for us, maybe?"

The Civil War — 100 Years Ago

That Sack Of Flour

A hundred years ago this week women of Morgan county were selling copies of a photograph of a man carrying a sack of flour. They got a quarter per copy and the money went into the Sanitary Commission Fund for the benefit of sick and wounded Union soldiers.

Reuel C. Gridley, the bearer of the flag-featured sack of flour — milled by a Douglas Democrat from wheat raised in California by a Douglas Democrat — really started something when he lost an election bet in April, 1864, in the first municipal election held in the silver-boom town of Austin, in mid-central Nevada. The next year proved to be hectic for Gridley as he and his 50 pounds of flour raised at least a quarter of a million dollars in a coast-to-coast, whirlwind campaign for the Sanitary Commission.

From Hannibal, Mo. Gridley was a chum of Mark Twain when they were boys in Hannibal, Mo. He was a true advocate of the doctrines of Stephen A. Douglas and had traveled over much of the West before joining in the big silver rush to Austin in January, 1863. He was no miner, but he and two of his friends developed the town's leading grocery store.

In April, 1864, there were more than 6,000 people in Austin. About half of them were Northerners and about half Southerners. When the primaries rolled around the Republicans nominated an outspoken Unionist from Vermont and the Democrats choose a man who boastfully called himself a Copperhead.

The election, like the town, was a wild one. Wagers of every kind, some of them running as high as $5,000, were made on the outcome. Gridley and his friend, Dr. Herrick, agreed that whoever lost would carry a sack of flour, to the tune of Dixie, the entire length of the town, which was boxed in a steep-walled canyon of the Keese river, from Gridley's store to the Bank Exchange saloon and there the winner would stand drinks.

A Narrow Victory Slightly more than 1,500 voted in the April 19 election and the Republicans won by seven votes.

At precisely 10 a.m. the next morning Gridley walked out of his store with a sack of flour adorned by two small American flags. The Austin Silver Comet band led the way, about a mile and a third, to the other end of town. The Dr. bought the drinks, there were complimentary speeches made by the winning and losing candidates, a few more drinks, and then everybody started on the back-track, with Gridley still in front with his sack of flour.

Midway back to the store the crowd paused to accept an invitation for refreshments at Grimes & Gibson's saloon. It was precisely at noon that Gridley proposed to sell the flour for the benefit of the Sanitary Commission fund. T. B. Wade volunteered to try the sale and Gridley bought his own flour for $200, and told Wade to sell it again.

Around And Around It turned into a wild auction. Anybody who was anybody had to buy the flour at a high price, kick in the money to the fund, and order it sold again.

When the line of individuals wore out there came unusual combinations of bidders. The Odd Fellows bought it; the Masons had to outdo them; the storekeepers bought it; the saloonkeepers united to beat their bid; the town's westenders combined their benevolent impulses and put the eastenders in the shade.

During pauses for libations the Comet band practically blew their horns to pieces and at 11 p.m. the auction was adjourned to begin at noon the next day. The day's receipts amounted to $4,239.75, all in coin and most of it gold.

The next day's sale wasn't so much, because there was scarcely any more loose money in the town. But the Sanitary Commission fund wound up with a total of $5,300.

Austin was on the Overland telegraph line and the energetic editor of the REESE RIVER

REVEILLE saw to it that the world heard about the auction.

Invited To Gold Hill

In a couple of days the lively mining camp of Gold Hill invited Gridley to come there and bring his sack of flour. He accepted and that was the last his family and the town of Austin saw him until June 7, 1865.

The flour brought $7,000 in Gold Hill and $12,000 in Virginia City, and more than $50,000 before Gridley got into San Francisco, where he had his picture taken. Then he boarded a ship, crossed the Isthmus of Panama and headed for the big Sanitary Fair in New York City.

HARPER'S WEEKLY got an early print of the San Francisco photograph and ran the engraving shown above in its Jan. 21 issue.

This pictorial weekly had a big sale in Austin in February and Gridley's friend and REVEILLE editor commented:

Take Your Choice

"R. C. Gridley, Esq., of this city, has not only got into New York, but also in the papers, bag and baggage. Harper's Weekly for January 21st has an engraving purporting to be a picture of Gridley and his famous Sanitary Flour. Looking over the engraving we are at loss to tell which is Gridley and which is the sack of flour; but go to Frank Drake's buy the paper, and you can have your choice. We remember our fellow-townsmen as a rather handsome man, but this has no more resemblance to Gridley than I to Hercules."

St. Louis Windup

Gridley and his flour made many of the Eastern states, and wound up the tour at the great fair in St. Louis, and then took the Overland Stage home.

He returned a broken man physically to find that his business had gone bankrupt in his absence, for the rich ledges of silver ore were pinching out, and the end of the war had reduced the price of silver so much that most of the Austin ores weren't worth the cost of milling.

He and his family moved to Paradise, Calif., where they operated a small grocery store until his death Nov. 27, 1870. He was buried in nearby Stockton cemetery.

His boyhood pal, Mark Twain, later wrote an account of Gridley, which became a chapter in "Roughing It." Twain's account is a lively one, but slightly on the inaccurate side. Twain nev-

Visit To Fort Sumter By General Gillmore And Staff, February 21, 1865. Sketched by Stanley Fox.—There is a thrilling dramatic effect in the repositioning of Fort Sumter four years after its surrender to traitors. Every thing connected with the capture of Charleston has more or less of this dramatic interest. Here the rebellion had its birth, and after four years of a strife the most terrible, as well as the most needless, on record, after four years which have done very much toward exhausting the Confederate States, the city which was the first theatre of war, which first heard the rebel shout of victory, has fallen before the prowess of our national arms. —HARPER'S WEEKLY.

News, Views Century Ago

From the Jacksonville Journal TO WASHINGTON CITY — Hon. Richard Yates left this city on last Monday, on his way to Washington City, where on the 4th of March, he will take his seat in the United States Senate.

We but repeat an oft and every-day uttered opinion when we predict for Dick Yates a career of unsurpassed brilliance as a Statesman, and unwavering loyalty to truth, freedom and the strictest integrity. His eloquence and lofty patriotism will at once secure for him an enviable eminence among the Nation's Great Law givers.

STILL AT WORK — Many of our patriotic citizens are still at work endeavoring to fill our quota with volunteers, and thus avoid the draft. They are meeting with pretty good success in raising money, and if all who are liable to the draft in the precinct would come forward and pay $25, we would soon be "out of the wilderness."

Our brave volunteers would have the satisfaction of "being in at the death of the rebellion."

GRAND FAIR AND SUPPER — The Catholics of this city announce to the kind and charitable, that they propose to hold a Fair and Supper in Strawn's Hall, on Monday evening, Feb. 27, inst. Its object is to pay off a part of the debt that still rests on the church and for the liquidation of the debt lately contracted by the purchase of a new lot, on which to build a larger church.

From the Jacksonville Sentinel: ELECTION — The voters of this county will vote on March 15 on a proposition to levy a tax of 1 1/2% on property to provide $100,000 for military bounties. Politics will cut no figure in this special election, the "Loyal Leaguers" having a little stomach for going to war to shed the first or last drop of their blood to finish the work of freeing the negroes, as the democrats.

LIVESTOCK AND GRAIN MARKET — The fall in the price of gold has proved "a damper" on the movement of fat stock and grain this week. We have only to record the shipment of 2 loads of hogs, by Mr. McLaughlin.

Fat cattle are quoted at $8, hogs $10, but feeders and buyers are both waiting "for something to turn up." The same may be said of grain holders and shippers. No sales, price nominal.

A ball comes off at Strawn's Hall, on the evening of the 22d, for the benefit of the Jacksonville Silver Comet band. The band, composed mostly of our German friends, has greatly improved in musical performance and is one of the city "institutions" in which our people take a just pride.

An advertisement for proposals from builders for the erection of the east wing of the Insane Hospital will be found in another column.

We learn that one of the Provost guard, detailed to guard substitutes to Springfield, was wounded by the accidental discharge of his musket, while stepping on the train last Saturday.

The Richmond papers say that the rebel congressmen have been frightened by the approach of Sherman, and run off until there is not a quorum left to do business.

A dutiful son is the pride of his parents, and the will obey their commands and buy his clothing and garments at Weil's Clothing House, west side of square. (ADV.)

From the Carrollton Gazette: On account of the press of job work, we are compelled to pay but little attention to our paper this week.

The population of Carrollton is much increasing by an emigration from other points, but houses are not to be had to live in.

Several persons who have been engaged in the traffic of ardent spirits in violation of our town ordinance have this week been arrested and found guilty, and as a consequence, the heavy fines are to be paid over to our city fathers to be used in building walks and otherwise improving the town.

Adding a little Worcestershire sauce to Blue Cheese dressing seems to help point up the good flavor.

A MARK OF CIVILIZATION — A French writer concludes an account of his shipwreck in these words: "Having arrived at an unknown region I traveled eleven hours without discovering the least trace of any human being. At last I perceived, to my great joy, a wretch suspended on a gibbet. 'Ah!' I exclaimed, 'I am now in a civilized country.'"

TO COMMEMORATE CLOSE OF WAR

An elaborate climax to the four-year observance of the centennial of the Civil War is being planned by the Tri-State Civil War Round Table in cooperation with the Illinois and neighboring county historical societies.

The end of the Civil War will be marked with ceremonies in Quincy during the week beginning Monday, April 19. The main features will be presented Saturday and Sunday, April 24 and 25.

The Saturday events will be opened with a street parade at 10 in the morning, featuring "One Hundred Years of Unity," with Col. J. Emmett Wilson as parade marshal.

One of the major attractions on both days will be a museum featuring Civil War relics, arms, war equipment, pictures, books, papers, and a wide variety of pioneers' objects.

Gun Duel at Tiedown

By Nelson C. Nye

Distributed by Newspaper Enterprise Assn. © 1965, Nelson C. Nye

THE STORY: Fearing that Spangler has hired a professional gunfighter to take care of Grisswell, Sheriff Jones rides to the Gourd & Vine ranch to find Grisswell has hired a new foreman.

XVIII

Jones, off his horse, stood at porch's edge hanging onto his reins while peering through a rumble of astonishment at the most notorious notch cutter still making widows. He was agast—plumb speechless, at the brazen effrontery of Grisswell.

Bad enough, in all conscience, to employ Sig in whatever capacity. He found it indescribably worse to think an owner of Mr. G's educational advantages and commercial accomplishments with both eyes open could deliberately import and place a cold-blooded killer in a position of authority with so much evident satisfaction.

Jones would sooner have grasped the clawed paw of a hydrophobic skunk than reach out his hand to a pistolero of this stripe—not that Raumel made any move. The man's bleached stare was no more readable than a snake's, nor did he bother to get up.

Jones, fiddling with his reins, finally said too loud: "I'd kind of like—if it would not be no great bother—to give me a look at that Jubal Jo horse, you're settin' such store by."

"Certainly," Grisswell said, raising up into the light from the windows to pick his snake out into the yard. "No bother to me. You want Shores to go with you?"

"Wouldn't want him to have to hitch up just fer that. I can find him, I reckon."

Then he found, somewhat surprised, that a door he'd supposed would lead to the clutter of pens out back actually opened into an ell and another double line of stalls presently dark. Feeling around for a switch he pushed this door open wider. Deep in that dark he caught a flutter of movement, more heard than glimpsed. Before he could swallow, the place was flooded with light and he found himself gazing at a gimlet-eyed jasper crouched over the gleam of a murderous saved-off shotgun. With twin rasping clicks both hammers went back.

"Hey!" Jones gasped. "Watch out! You wanta kill somebody?"

"Wotcher doin' back here?" "Lookin' fer that horse—" "Wot I figgered!" Jones didn't care for the tone of that at all. "Now see

And he set off with a wave, glad to get clear of that pet cobra stare, but some worried, took by the bland mocking texture of Grisswell's thin smile.

He let go of his reins outside the stables, leaving his horse while he went up the runway, finding the place bright as a knifeblade. Horses inquisitively looked around from their stalls, a couple softly whinnying, one pattered by impatiently pawing at a hole the way some running horses will. At the end of the line he found a gray stallion but the name card tacked beside the Dutch door said Telachapi Tom. Nowhere did Butterly see the black he hunted.

Then he found, somewhat surprised, that a door he'd supposed would lead to the clutter of pens out back actually opened into an ell and another double line of stalls presently dark. Feeling around for a switch he pushed this door open wider. Deep in that dark he caught a flutter of movement, more heard than glimpsed. Before he could swallow, the place was flooded with light and he found himself gazing at a gimlet-eyed jasper crouched over the gleam of a murderous saved-off shotgun. With twin rasping clicks both hammers went back.

"Hey!" Jones gasped. "Watch out! You wanta kill somebody?"

"Wotcher doin' back here?" "Lookin' fer that horse—" "Wot I figgered!" Jones didn't care for the tone of that at all. "Now see

There was a near, Jones guessed, as she could come to an apology. It scarcely made up for the fright he'd been given and did even less toward bolstering hurt dignity. Still smarting he growled: "I don't have to be hit over the head to know when I ain't wanted!"

The guy with the double-barreled made a rude noise. With her mousy hair in that untidy bun lifted her chin to eye his riled face. "Sometimes," she said, "I get to wonderin' about you," and left it lay there.

Jones, cheeks darkening, spun to paw for the door. The Mullins female said with a kind of startled haste, "Come on—I'll give you a knockdown to Jubal," and set off past Jeeter toward the corridor's far end.

Mac Falls 84-81, Triopia Wins PMSC 62-59

Clan Effort Falls In Closing Seconds

By DAVE INGLES — Mac shot a fine 50% for the Christian Brothers broke up game, and CBC hit at a 41.7% a tight game with six straight clip, although they could only points in the final two minutes muster 8 of 17 from the charity to edge the determined Mac- stripe for 47%. Stauder's 30 Murray Highlanders, 84-81, here took game scoring honors, with Friday night, Mike Stauder tallied on a layup with 2:05 to go to break a 77-77 deadlock in CBC's favor and the visitors ran up an 83-77 margin to ice the win.

MacMurray brought a six-point spread into the second half, 47-41, but the visitors slowly chopped the lead down and knotted the count at 52-all with 16:35 to play on a free throw by Bart Freihaut. The lead then seceded, and the contest was tied three more times before the visiting Buccaneers opened up a 65-58 advantage with 12 minutes to go.

Tom Zurkammer earned a three-point play and another layup following a drive by Jim Margrave to cut CBC's margin to 2 at 67-65 with 8:40 to play, but the Bucs' Bob Ryan drove for a bucket to give CBC a 4-point margin. Mac's Steve Proessel hit on a short jumper with 6:06 to go to make it 69-67 in the Bucs' favor, but Harry Matheny tipped in a missed free shot by Zurkammer to tie the contest up once again, 69-69.

Clan Rallyes Again — Ryan hit a jumper and Mike Gleason tallied on a drive following a stolen pass to give CBC a 73-69 margin, but once again the Clan fought back to tie it up. Hargrave got a pair of free throws with 6:33 to go and Matheny intercepted the ball and drove in for a bucket, 13 seconds later to knot the score at 73-73.

Hargrave dunked a tip with 5:06 to go to give MacMurray the lead, 75-73, but Ryan canned a layup for CBC to tie it up for the seventh time. Two free throws by Hargrave gave the Clan a 77-75 advantage with four and a half minutes left, and when the Highlanders again got the ball they went to a control game.

Matheny was called on a charging foul and CBC came back to tie it up for the eighth and final time, 77-77, with 2:33 to go.

This set up Stauder for the crucial bucket, and CBC got six in a row to set up an insurmountable lead. Twice MacMurray missed on close shots, and blew three tips in a row on one occasion to seal the game for the Buccaneers.

Reserve man Bob Gay hit a short jumper with 54 seconds left to cut it to 82-79, but it was too late for the Clan. Freihaut added one of two charity throws for an 84-79 spread, and Zurkammer added a jumper at the gun for the final 84-81 count.

MacMurray jumped to an early lead in the opening minutes, finally running up a ten-point spread at 45-35 with just under two minutes to go on a tip by Zurkammer. Stauder was all that kept CBC in the game as he hit 18 points in the opening 20 minutes. Matheny had 18 also in the opening half for Mac, with Zurkammer adding 13 and Hargrave 10.

Visitors Cold Early — The visitors were ice cold in the opening period from the floor, hitting a meager 32% compared to the Clan's red-hot 53% pace. CBC pulled off 30 rebounds to the Highlanders' 21, and the Bucs cleared off 22 offensive grabs, more than the Mac total. For the game, CBC had 45 rebounds to MacMurray's 33.

Rockets End Year With 44-42 Triumph

MEREDOSIA — Hitting nine of 17 shots from the field in the first half, the Routt Rockets built up a nine-point lead, which they were able to maintain in downing the Meredosias, 44-42, here Friday night.

The Indians were unable to find the range until late in the fourth quarter, but the Routt five's defense, behind the rebounding of center Bill Templin managed to hold off the late Meredosias surge.

The first half was Routt all the way, as seniors, guard Leo Carroll and forward Jerry McGinnis each collected nine points before the intermission. Mike Fitzpatrick proved to be the mainstay of the Rocket attack during the half, hauling down 11 rebounds.

Neither team could find the rim as the second half opened, as 3:00 expired before either team was able to tally. The Indians' baskets by Indian center Tim Surra and Tom Carroll cut the Rocket lead to only five, but McGinnis and Carroll countered with two-pointers for the visitors, running the margin back to 9.

Clutch foul shooting by the Meredosias quintet packed away throughout the fourth quarter, but they were never able to tie the contest, as the closest they came was the two-point spread at the final buzzer.

A high point man in the game was Carroll with 15, while McGinnis and Fitzpatrick hit 13 and 12 respectively.

Burrus And Werries Pace Trojan Margin

By BUFORD GREEN — spread. The final margin could have been much larger but for the Trojans' unusually large number of turnovers, 17 for the game and ten in the first half. Triopia, while outrebounding the taller Redbirds 29-22, stuck to picking their shots from the control offense, took only 33 shots but hit 21 for a red-hot 63% shooting clip. Virginia was slightly cooler from the field, taking 69 attempts and hitting on 25 for a 36% rate.

The opening minutes of the crucial contest at Chapin saw both clubs commit numerous errors and the scoring run slow. A late bucket by 6-7 Wood Gebhardt gave Virginia a 10-8 first-quarter edge.

Crack Redbird Defense — Triopia's Jim Morrison and Dean Fricke continually cracked the Virginia defense with rifle passes through the pack to Burrus underneath for the six-footer's specialty. Burrus racked up eight points in the second frame and by half Triopia had racked up a 22-13 spread.

For the half Triopia hit a blazing 62.5%, hitting ten of 16 attempts, while Virginia was ice-cold with a 27% clip.

Burrus and Werries carried Triopia to the biggest leads of the game midway in the third quarter, at 32-22 and 34-24, before Virginia stormed back with a spurt good for 13 of 15 points in one stretch and finally a 35-35 deadlock with 2:10 left in the period. Steve Larsen was especially outstanding in the spurt, hitting three of three shots from the corner.

From there in the rest of the third quarter and the first two minutes of the fourth neither team led by more than two points and the advantage switched back and forth four straight times.

The breaking point came entering the final six minutes of play as Werries hit four of four and Burrus canned a pair from 15 feet and added a bucket for a 51-46 Trojan edge they never lost.

The closest Virginia came after that was at 58-55 on buckets by Bill Middleton and Gebhardt. From there Werries added four final charity throws and Burrus two of two for the final spread. The final margin could have been much larger but for the Trojans' unusually large number of turnovers, 17 for the game and ten in the first half.
